Hitler Snubs Pacts; Czechs Make Final Offer To Sudetens

Fuehrer Ignores Crisis For Discussion Of Germany's Inner Conditions Before Congress at Nurnberg

LAUDS DUCE FOR DRIVE ON JEWRY, COMMUNISM

By The Associated Press.

NURNBERG, Germany, Sept. 6—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler ignored Czechoslovakia in his proclamation today to the 10th annual Nazi congress, disappointing anxious European statesmen who had hoped for an inkling of Germany's intentions in central Europe.

Almost his whole 5,000-word proclamation dealt with inner conditions of Germany, particularly economically, which the fuehrer assured his followers was so healthy that the nation will be without worries for food for years to come."

Denies Foreign Pacts

Through the voice of district leader Adolf Wagner, who read the fuehrer's proclamation in congress hall, Hitler repudiated any intention of forming a pact with foreign powers.

"I have never had nor have this intention," the chancellor declared.

The statement was cheered thunderously.

Instead, he declared he was offering the people a "greater Germany"—referring to the absorption last March 13 of Austria—and the union of "six and a half million Germans who today spiritually unite here . . . stronger than ever . . . in a great indissoluble community."

The absence of any word on Czechoslovakia undoubtedly was disappointing to the 45 frock-coated foreign diplomats who had accepted Hitler's personal invitation to attend the congress. They were an island in a sea of uniforms in the packed hall.

Among them was Hugh R. Wilson, United States ambassador to Berlin. Never before had an American ambassador accepted the invitation to Nurnberg.

Besides his brief denial of any intention of aligning Germany in a pact, the chancellor's only allusions to foreign affairs were an evident reference to Italy's newly-begun anti-Jewish measures and a denunciation of the "international Jewish world enemy."

Attacks Bolshevism

Hitler linked the "Jewish virus" with the "world pest" of Bolshevism.

"More threatening than ever," he said, "the Bolshevist danger of the destruction of nations rises above this world."

With 21 Italian Fascists in the audience, headed by Roberto Farinacci, former secretary of the Fascist party, the fuehrer lauded the "mutual spiritual conception" which "leads us more and more humanely together."

He expressed joy that "another great European power x x x shares the same conception and with admirable determination has drawn the most far-reaching conclusions."

Greater Germany, its inner strength and the annexation of Austria provided his main themes.

Germany's house is in order, he declared, and he advised the democracies to follow her example if they wanted to revive world trade.

The proclamation was the formal opening of the congress.

Praha Awaits Reactions To Sweeping Concessions On Nazis' Autonomy Demand From Benes Government

NATION RISKS DANGER AT HOME FOR PEACE

By The Associated Press

PRAHA, Sept. 6.—The Czech government anxiously awaited reaction today from two quarters to its sweeping concessions to the German population of the republic.

The first question: "Would this 'last and ultimate offer," formulated at a 4½-hour cabinet session last night, satisfy the Sudeten German party which in long-winded negotiations has been insisting on a degree of autonomy amounting almost to independence?"

The second question: "How would the Czechs, who have been aroused to nationalistic fervor by the patriotic press, receive the news of a government retreat under German pressure?"

Great Sacrifice Seen

There appeared the possibility that the government had sought to avoid danger from abroad by risking an internal danger.

In quarters close to the government it was contended that Czechoslovakia has sacrificed much at the insistence of her friends and allies.

It was known that both England and France, earnestly striving to avoid war, had urged Praha to make all possible concessions.

The government did not reveal details of its plans, and the Sudeten German party had not indicated whether it would take less than its original demands, which included primarily the recognition of the Sudetens' right to profess the Nazi ideology.

The Praha correspondent of Reuters (British news agency) said the concessions included recognition of territorial autonomy for the Sudetens, recognition of their full equality in the Czechoslovak state and recognition of the equality of the German language as the official language in the Sudeten area.

Sudetens Issue Communiques

A foreign office spokesman said these would be the government's final concessions.

The Sudeten Germans issued two communiques. One declared that "only by speedy adoption" by the government of the eight-point autonomy program can the situation be remedied." That was the first party statement since Konrad Henlein, the Sudeten leader, conferred with Adolf Hitler last week.

The second communique insisted the government knew the party's position before Henlein went to see Hitler in Bavaria. This seemed to be a move to counteract the Czechoslovak argument that Hitler, and not Henlein, determined the Sudeten German's stand.

VOWED NEW DEALERS VIE WITH MCCARRAN

By The Associated Press.

RENO, Nev., Sept. 6—Sen. Pat McCarran, who has opposed several administration measures, sought renomination against the challenge of two avowed new deal contenders today in Nevada's primary election.

The three-sided race and a similar one for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination was expected to draw out a large percentage of the state's 55,000 registered voters.

Seeking the senatorial nomination against McCarran, who opposed the Supreme Court and government reorganization bills, were Albert Hilliard, Reno attorney, and Dr. John Worden of Carson City, state board of health secretary.

Former Sen. Tasker L. Oddie was unopposed for the Republican senatorial nomination.

Abducted Girl Rescued

PARIS, Mo., Sept. 6.—A pretty, 23-year-old rural school teacher was rescued from her abductor yesterday by a farmer with an unloaded shotgun, less than two hours after she was forced from her classroom. Clarence Young, who left his shells behind when he grabbed his double-barreled shotgun to join a posse, came upon the teacher, Miss Elinor Fern Dooley, in a cornfield. A youth was crouched near her, an open pocket knife in his hand.

PRESIDENT ASKS NOMINATION OF FOE OF TYDINGS

Backers Pleased By Failure To Name Maryland Senator In Appeal For Lewis

By The Associated Press.

DENTON, Md., Sept. 6.—Now that President Roosevelt has come and gone, the Tydings-Lewis campaign on Maryland's eastern shore is reverting to cracker-box discussions.

The farmers and oystermen can debate until the primaries next Monday the President's appeal for Democrats to nominate Rep. David J. Lewis to the seat of Sen. Millard E. Tydings.

In a sense, Mr. Roosevelt's Labor day address pleased both factions. The Lewis followers were gratified by the President's praise of their champion—"a man who not only has seen visions but has lived to make his dreams come true."

Tydings Camp Surprised

In the Tydings camp, there was surprise and frank jubilation that Mr. Roosevelt did not denounce the senator by name. To be sure, he made unmistakable references about men pretending to be either liberal or conservative and acting like the other. But the Tydings people termed the speech mild compared with Mr. Roosevelt's outright denunciation in Georgia of Sen. Walter F. George, another "conservative" Democrat.

It was evident that the eastern shore families who formed the audience were there to hear about the senatorial campaign. They have nearly one-quarter of the voice in its outcome, and they are conscious of their strategic position.

Just before the speech was over, every father in the crowd—even those wearing Tydings buttons—held up freshly-scrubbed babies for a last look at Mr. Roosevelt.

Pleads For Cooperation

Progress, he said at one point, "comes from the rank and file of our citizens, and through the representatives of their free choice—representatives willing to cooperate, to get things done in the true spirit of 'give and take'—not representatives who seek every plausible excuse for blocking action."

Earlier in the speech he had referred to liberals and conservatives and added: "Any man—any political party—has the right to be honestly one or the other. But the nation can not stand for the confusion of having him pretend to be one and act like the other."

Tydings Charges Federal Employes Work For Lewis

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Sen. Tydings (D) of Maryland told the senate campaign expenditures committee today that the collector of internal revenue for Maryland and the postmistress of Salisbury, Md., had made "notorious" efforts to influence federal employes in behalf of Rep. Lewis (D) of Maryland, Tydings, opponent in the Democratic senatorial primary.

Chairman Sheppard (D) of Texas said he would submit Tydings' complaint to the committee Thursday.

RANCHER'S WIFE AIDS HUNT FOR KIDNAPERS

Descriptions By Abandoned Woman Speed Search

By The Associated Press.

MARYSVILLE, Calif., Sept. 6. — Descriptions furnished by Mrs. W. R. Meeks, well-to-do rancher's wife, speeded the hunt today for the kidnapers who threatened her life during a 56-hour period, but who were afraid to collect the $15,000 ransom they demanded.

A few hours after Mrs. Meeks, who is 55, had described two of the three abductors, District Attorney Lloyd Hewitt sent investigators out of town to question two men he said were suspects in the case.

The prosecutor declined to identify the men, say whether they were under arrest, or reveal where they would be questioned.

"We are now working on several good leads," said Capt. E. W. Personius of the state highway patrol. "The search will get into full swing today."

Mrs. Meeks, held on a lonely hillside splotched with poison oak, was seized in her home last Thursday night by two men, who bound her and her husband, and drove her away in the rancher's automobile. After holding the woman until Saturday night, they abandoned her and she made her way home early Sunday.

HULL SEEKS ORDERLY EXPULSION OF JEWS

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Secretary of State Hull is seeking, through the permanent refugee committee set up in London, to induce Chancellor Hitler to permit Jews to leave Germany on a humanitarian, regular quota basis.

Representatives of the London committee have described the present treatment, expulsion and emigration of Jews as chaotic.

Specifically, they want Hitler to refrain from thrusting some thousands of Jews upon the world one month and allowing only a few to go another month.

Turner Roars To New Speed Record To Win Trophy Second Time

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 6—A big guy with a wide, toothy grin has recaptured the world's choicest aviation trophy for the United States at a speed which those foolish visionaries used to write about in the days of the one hoss shay:

Snugly seated in a silver-hued racing plane, Roscoe Turner of Chicago breezed around a 10-mile course for 63½ minutes yesterday to jack up to 283.419 miles an hour the pace for the 300-mile Thompson trophy.

In annexing the final event of the three-day national air races, Turner exceeded by 19 miles an hour the pace set by Michael Detroyat of France in the same race at Los Angeles in 1936.

So Turner had double satisfaction. He walloped one of Europe's speed aces and he won the Thompson race for the second time to become the only man who ever ac-

U. S. TO REGISTER FOREIGN AGENTS

State Department Moves To Enforce New Federal Law

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6. — The government ordered today that all agents of foreign governments register with the state department.

Under a law enacted at the last session of congress and effective today, the state department prepared regulations governing the information which must be submitted.

The law exempts only diplomatic and consular officers and those persons "performing only private, non-political, financial, mercantile or other activities in furtherance of the bona fide trade or commerce" of foreign nations.

The act was designed to give this country better control over the activities of propaganda agents and other representatives including Americans paid by other nations.

The statute defines an agent of a foreign government as "any person who acts or engages or agrees to act as a public relations counsel, publicity agent, or as an agent, servant, representative, or attorney for a foreign principal or for any domestic organization subsidized directly or indirectly in whole or in part by a foreign principal."

The information required of such agents includes the name of the foreign government, person or organization employing the agents, a copy of the contract or a full statement of its terms, if oral; the amount of compensation; the name of every foreign principal which has contributed toward the compensation, and a copy of charter or articles of incorporation if the registrant is a partnership or corporation.

REINSTATEMENT ASKED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—The national labor relations board received a recommendation from one of its examiners today to require the Ford Motor Co. to reinstate 129 employes at its Richmond, Calif., plant.

Roosevelt To Make Next Talk In New York Sept. 17

By The Associated Press.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 6.—President Roosevelt returned to his home here today after a night train ride from Washington.

Aids said he had no speaking engagements until Sept. 17 when, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., he will observe the 150th anniversary of the radification of New York's constitution.

There has been speculation that he might take occasion then to say something more about why he has asked Democrats of the 16th New York district not to renominate Rep. John J. O'Connor.

The President remained in the capital only a few hours last night before boarding a special train for Hyde Park. He had spent the day in company with Rep. David J. Lewis, (D) of Maryland touring Maryland's eastern shore by automobile.

SANDUSKY, O., Sept. 6. — Osborne state prison farm officials today sought two trusties, Boyle Vance, 17, and Kenneth Carpenter, 25, who escaped from the institution. Both were sentenced to Mansfield reformatory from Highland county.

SAWYER LABOR BACKING LINKED TO COMMUNISM

Bricker Takes Davey Theme To Denounce Non-Partisan League Support Of Foe

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 6—A favorite theme of Gov. Martin L. Davey's unsuccessful primary race, the issue of Communist political activities through Committee for Industrial Organization leaders was virtually assured today of top billing in Ohio's fall election campaign.

John W. Bricker, Republican gubernatorial candidate, in a radio address last night struck out for labor's votes by charging that the Communist party engineered the CIO-dominated Labor's Non-Partisan league support of Charles L. Sawyer, Bricker's Democratic opponent.

"There is evidence," said Bricker, who was defeated in the 1936 election, "that the entire campaign now being waged against me was conceived and put into execution by the Communist party."

Quotes From Publication

He then quoted from the March, 1938, issue of the Communist, portions of an article advocating statewide organization of a "people's front movement" in Ohio through a "solid Labor's Non-Partisan league."

Added Bricker:

"Thus the Communists, back in March, were laying their plans to work through Labor's Non-Partisan league in this campaign. And here is the rest of the Communist plan x x x 'the mass movement must march on to the defeat of Bricker'."

Bricker said CIO leaders repeatedly called Sawyer their candidate for governor, commenting: "He has not denied and he cannot."

In substantially similar language, Gov. Davey frequently raised the CIO-Communist issue against Sawyer during the primary campaign.

Republican strategists, noting the heavy primary vote for Davey in rural areas where opposition to the CIO was reputedly strongest, were credited with promptly reinjecting the issue to counteract Sawyer's campaign plans in the farm territory.

CIO Breaks With Davey

The CIO supported Davey in the 1936 election but broke with him after the Ohio executive sent troops into the Mahoning valley "little steel" strike area last summer.

Sawyer's advisors acknowledged after the Aug. 9 primary that swinging the rural vote to their candidate would be an important factor in their hopes for success in November.

Bricker, in his radio address, said he favored unionization, collective bargaining, preservation of the right to strike and picket peacefully but added this warning:

SPECIAL SCHOOL LEVY BALLOT SET TUESDAY

2 County Townships To Vote In Mahoning Issue

The first of four special school bond issues affecting Columbiana county will be subject to vote next Tuesday in Goshen township rural school district, F. R. O'Hanlon, clerk of the county election board, announced today.

Levies for payment of current expenses in Summitville and Salineville rural school district will be voted on Nov. 8.

A vote on the $55,000 required of the sponsor in a proposed $100,000 PWA school building will be taken Tuesday in Knox and Butler township precincts, only Columbiana county part of the school district, most of which is in Mahoning county.

A similar PWA school program, with a bond issue of $275,000 for a $500,000 building, will be voted on a week later in Western school district, composed of 11 precincts and six townships.

The Summitville proposition calls for a three-mill levy over a three-year-period, and the Salineville issue four mills over five years. The election board has ordered ballot places for the special issues.

Berrodin Snubs U.S. Pension Inquiry; Failure To Appear Termed Admission Of Guilt

Moore Called Model Prisoner; Monotony Relieved By Visits

'Triangle Murder' Defendant Wins Praise Of Jailor While Waiting Jury

Special To The Review.

LISBON, Sept. 6.—Frank Moore, East Liverpool painter accused of the "triangle" slaying of August Fischer, today resumed the monotonous schedule of jail existence after visits over the week-end from friends and relatives.

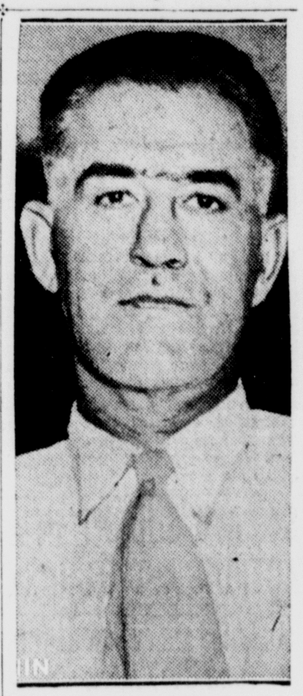
Moore is held in the county jail "murderers' row" with Charles Flory, another murder defendant, and is described as a model prisoner by the custodian, Deputy Sheriff John Herman.

Mrs. Moore, for whose love her husband assertedly killed, and their two children, Robert, 13, and Clyde, 11, have not visited him although Mrs. Moore declared "I will stick by my husband" when police questioned her shortly after the killing early the morning of Aug. 31.

Moore blamed Fischer, a rug salesman of Sophia st., for "breaking up my home" by alienating Mrs. Moore's love while he, the husband, was on the west coast for 21 months in quest of work. Moore is 56, Fischer was 49.

Moore aroused Police Chief McDermott, his neighbor on College st., and said, "I've just killed a man." The chief and Moore returned to Fischer's home where they found him dead on a rear porch, four bullets in his body.

According to police, Moore said he called Fischer to the door and shot him as he pleaded, "wait a minute . . . " Moore is held on first degree murder pending action of the grand jury on Sept. 19.



FRANK MOORE
Will Plead 'Unwritten Law'

His attorney, G. Jay Clark, said Moore's defense will be based on "unwritten law."

Moore's cellmate, Flory, is accused of the shotgun slaying of Mrs. Flory on Aug. 1 on their farm in Center township. The farmer blamed arguments over the conduct of their children.

COURT ENJOINS STATE MILEAGE

$23,000 Payment For Ohio Representatives Halted

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 6.—Common Pleas Judge John R. King enjoined the state today from paying $23,000 in mileage allowances to state representatives in the 91st general assembly and ordered State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson to collect $5,557 already received by senators on mileage claims.

Judge King ruled that since no legislative sessions were held between July 22 and Dec. 8, 1936, weekly allowances at the rate of 3.6 cents a mile could not be claimed by the legislators. Legislative leaders had contended that although the legislature actually was not in session, its journal showed weekly meetings throughout the recess and that the journal could not be questioned.

Farmer Brings Suit

Suit to enjoin the mileage payment was brought by Arnett Harbage, West Jefferson farmer, who was represented by Gilbert Bettman, former Ohio attorney general, and Mrs. Agnes Dickinson, Columbus attorney. Bettman contended that the theory that no one could go behind the journals of the legislature was merely a "bogey."

The attorney general's office had ruled in 1919 and 1934 and legislators were entitled only to actual mileage traveled to attend a session.

After returning from a 140-day recess in December 1936, the house and senate went through a lengthy ceremony of recessing and reconvening 40 times in one day, and presented vouchers for mileage for fictitious weekly trips to the capital.

Allowances Paid Before Suit

Mileage allowances were paid the senators before Harbage brought his suit.

Attaches of the auditor's office said they did not know just how much was involved in the senate payments, but that examiners would be put to work on it and

FORMER DISTRICT RESIDENT KILLED

2 Hurt In Chester Mishap, State Counts 33 Dead

East Liverpool quietly observed Labor day and with few accidents despite the abnormally heavy traffic.

A former Hookstown resident was killed in a crash in Canada, while Ohio counted 33 dead, 30 of them victims of holiday motoring. A Chester woman and her husband were injured in one of the few accidents of the district.

Miss Mildred Mae Mills, 44, of Beaver, formerly of Hookstown, was killed and two of her three traveling companions were injured in an automobile accident near Belleville, Ont., Canada, Saturday afternoon.

Dies In Hospital

Miss Mills died in a Belleville hospital Sunday afternoon. The injured are Misses Mayme and Margaret Dawson, aunts of the victim, who formerly lived on the old Dawson farm at the state line.

Miss U. V. Holmes of Beaver escaped unhurt.

The four left Beaver Thursday afternoon on a vacation. They had attended the Toronto fair Friday

Nation's Labor Day Fatalities Total 396

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6. — The nation's Labor week-end death toll this year climbed to 396, a survey showed today, compared with 391 for the 1937 week-end.

Jammed highways and bathing resorts accounted for most of the tragedies, but the automobile was by far the greater single death-dealer. At least 278 persons were killed in motor car mishaps; 44 were drowned. The figures also included 18 suicides, 11 homicides and 45 miscellaneous fatalities. California and Ohio, with 33 deaths each, led the grim parade.

Head Of State Board Ducks Hearing Into Charges Of Maladministration Of Old Age Benefits In Ohio

FAILURE TO CONFORM TO STANDARDS CITED

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer said today the failure of Ohio officials to appear before the social security board to answer charges of maladministration of the state's old age pension program was "an admission of the truth of the charges."

Altmeyer made the assertion at a hearing called by the board to determine whether Ohio should be denied federal old age grants.

Henry J. Berrodin, chief of the Ohio welfare department's division of aid for the aged, had been called to testify on accusations that the division failed to conform to federal standards. Copies of the notice to Berrodin went also to Gov. Martin L. Davey and Mrs. Margaret M. Allman, director of the state welfare department.

Board Not Surprised

Altmeyer commented that the failure of officials to appear was "no surprise" to the board, adding it was "reasonable to assume" the failure constituted "an admission" that the charges were true.

State officials had not only failed to improve the administration of old age pensions, Altmeyer continued, but had allowed it "to become progressively worse."

Taking the stand as the first witness, Robert P. Bingham, of the board's legal staff, summed up its charges and said evidence would be submitted to show aid for the aged had been used for political purposes, He testified.

"The essential purposes of the social security act and the Ohio legislation providing aid to the aged, namely, to assure security to needy aged recipients, has been impaired by the utilization of the division of aid for the aged as a political instrument to influence the vote of old age assistance recipients, applicants, and their relatives."

Orders From Davey Hinted

A board representative said it was understood Berrodin was in the city, but stayed away at the request of Gov. Davey.

Bingham told the board Ohio had failed to conform with four out of seven requirements of the social security act. He said there had been excessive delay in the handling of applications for assistance, failure to establish definite administrative authority and lack of uniform administration over the state.

Some of the policies adopted, he said, had resulted in arbitrary discrimination against recipients and caused them unnecessary suffering. He said audits made by the board, covering a period from the time of the first grants to Jan. 1, 1938, would be submitted at the hearing and would show the board had taken exception to approximately $1,900,000 distributed in Ohio.

Bingham said the proportion of exceptions taken by the board to

GOVERNMENT QUELLS CHILEAN NAZI REVOLT

Gen. Ibanez Arrested After Rebellion Kills 87

By The Associated Press.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 6.—The government today asked a free hand for six months because of Monday's rebellion by a small group of Chilean national socialists who were crushed after three and one-half hours of fighting in which possibly 87 persons were killed.

The government blamed and arrested Gen. Carlos Ibanez, a candidate for the presidency, after the rebels were driven from a building of the National university and the 10-story workers' insurance building in which they had established defenses.

Ibanez' candidacy in elections scheduled for Oct. 25 is said to be backed by the Nazis (who claim 20,000 members, are without formal affiliation with German Nazis, but have adopted much of the German national socialist program.)

A state of siege, a form of martial law, was declared but a military announcement said the situation was well in hand and it was not necessary to enforce the restrictions fully.

The government of President Arturo Alessandri (of the liberal party, which in Chile leans to the right) petitioned the senate, however, for the extraordinary powers for six months.

Authorities closed the newspapers Trabajo, a Nazi organ, and La Opinion, a left extremist publication.

Veterans Of 332nd Warned Of Duty To Help Preserve Peace

VETERANS of the 332nd Infantry association had returned to their homes and work today, having chosen Steubenville for their 1939 convention and elected Steubenville men to head the famous World war unit as the climax of their 17th annual reunion that attracted about 500 here Saturday and Sunday.

The veterans and their wives combined fun and business during the two-day reunion. They heard speakers at the several functions point to the need of preserving peace "in a world already beset by mounting peril of war;" they paid respects to departed comrades at a solemn memorial service and they applauded and sang in good fellowship during a lengthy entertainment program as the highlights of their convention.

The veterans came from the tri-state area, original source of the recruits for the regiment when it went overseas and fought on the Italo-Austrian front in 1917 and 1918.

Carlos P. Deemer, retiring president, called on former regimental leaders for brief talks Saturday night at the reunions of the companies.

Joseph T. Croxall, president of the Chamber of Commerce, addressed them later at the welcoming preceding the entertainment in the Elks temple.

Sunday morning before the election and business session they heard Attorney William H. Vodrey and Dr. Romeo Montecci, the latter of Cleveland, Italian consul.

The veterans elected Harry C. Ewing, former top sergeant of Company K, as president; George Floto, vice president; Frank Conn, secretary; George Barthold, treasurer, and Frank Thomas, chairman of committees—all of Steubenville—where they will meet next year.

Mr. Deemer presiding at the main company dinner, called for remarks from Dr. Montecci, Capt. R. R. McGowan of Steubenville, and Lieut. Abe Crawford and Lieut. H. Hamilton of Cleveland; Otillio Serafini, vice consul of Steubenville, and Dr. Raffaele Montica, commander of the Italian veterans of Steubenville who were represented by a large delegation.

Members of L and K companies and the Italian veterans occupied the main dining room during the dinner in the Travelers hotel, headquarters of the reunion. Companies A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I, and M, and members of the machine gun, medical detachment, supplies and headquarters groups were in the other dining rooms.

All East Liverpool officers of the association were in Co. L except Fred Booth and G. A. Patterson, the latter retiring vice president.

Mr. Croxall in his brief address pointed to the sacrifices made in the World war for the preservation of democracy and then contrasted the world of those days

FIRES, FLOODS SWEEP OVER CENTRAL JAPAN

By The Associated Press.

TOKYO, Sept. 6—Fire and floods swept central Japan today in the wake of a 97-mile-an-hour typhoon which left a possible 100 dead and destroyed property over a wide area.

Fire broke out in Takaoka, at the base of Noto peninsula, and quickly leveled more than 2,000 buildings. Tokyo newspapers estimated deaths in the Takaoka fire at 100, possibly more. Osaka reported 15,000 homes were flooded. At Kobe 31 ships were sunk or damaged.

The typhoon swept over Shikoku island and Honshu, the main island of Japan, and reached the Japan sea this morning. A typhoon of lesser intensity Thursday caused at least 175 deaths in the Tokyo-Yokohama area.

and were on their way to Kingston and the Thousands Islands when the accident occured.

The automobile is said to have skidded on a wet road, plunged into a ditch and overturned. Miss Mayme Dawson suffered head injuries while her sister sustained a broken collarbone.

Miss Mills was born and reared in Hookstown, but has lived in Beaver for more than 25 years. She was employed by the Keystone Driller Co. for about 20 years and was appointed a clerk in the registrar and recorder's office in the courthouse at Beaver three years ago. She was a graduate of the music department of Geneva college and was a member of the Beaver United Presbyterian church.

The body arrived in Beaver early this morning and was taken to the home of her aunt, Mrs. David Smith, in Third st., where funeral services will be held Wednesday at 3 p. m. daylight saving time. Burial will be in the Georgetown cemetery.

Mrs. George A. Allison of Phoenix ave., Chester, was recovering in City hospital today from injuries sustained Saturday night when her husband's car collided with another on Lincoln highway two miles east of the community. She suffered a possible leg fracture.

George A. Allison, the driver, was accompaniel by Mrs. Allison and Mr. and Mrs. Ottomar Moon of Chester. His car and one operated by J. A. Butter of Turtle Creek, Pa., crashed. Miss Effie Galan of Pittsburgh was with Mr. Butter. The latter two were not hurt.

Husband Is Treated

Mr. Allison was discharged from the hospital after treatment. Deputy Sheriff William Graham and state police investigated. Allison's machine was badly damaged.

The heaviest state toll was taken Friday night and Saturday, when 17 died. Eleven victims were recorded Sunday and four yesterday.

At Dayton, six-year-old Robert Baker drank gasoline by mistake while at play and died. The body of 80-year-old Henry Elliott was taken from the Tuscarawas river at Coshocton.

Mrs. Mirim Davis, 73, of Oberlin died in Cleveland last night of injuries sustained in an automobile crash, and at Ravenna Nellie Nichols, 27-year-old relief investigator, was killed outright in a collision.

Alfred Norris of Ninth st., injured Wednesday when he was struck by a hit-skip driver, continued to improve in City hospital, where his condition was reported as fairly good.

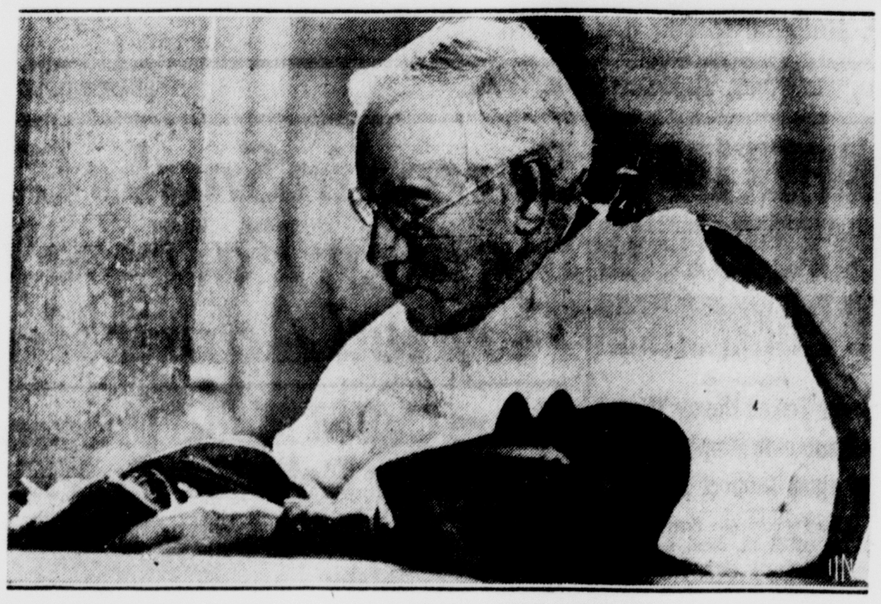
Meanwhile Gene Smith of Cadmus st., who admitted to police he was the driver of the car that struck Norris, is at liberty on $2,000 bond. A hearing will be held when Norris definitely is out of danger.

Peter Metesia of Cuddy, Pa., and James Quinn of Preston, Pa., suffered brush burns when their motorcycle crashed into an automobile driven by Leland Patterson of Salem.

The accident occurred on route 45, midway between Salem and Lisbon, Monday at 10:30 a. m. No one in the Patterson car was injured. After receiving first aid treatment, Metesia was taken to Salem, where he was fined $10 and costs by Mayor George Harroff on a reckless driving charge.

State highway patrolmen, who investigated, reported that Metesia was rounding a sharp curve too fast, causing him to lose control of his machine.

Death Takes Patrick Cardinal Hayes, Catholic Leader



IN ILL health for some years, Patrick Cardinal Hayes, archbishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of New York, died peacefully in his sleep in New York City. Discovery of his passing came when he was to be called for early services. This picture was taken in St. Patrick's cathedral, New York, on Good Friday, 1936, as the Cardinal knelt in prayer.

$43,875 SOUGHT IN 4 ACTIONS AFTER CRASH

Salineville Man Defendant In Suits Over Accident

Special To The Review.

LISBON, Sept. 6 — Four suits asking damages aggregating $43,875, growing out of an automobile crash on route 164, two miles south of Salineville on Aug. 22, 1937, were filed in common pleas court here today.

Fred Miller of near Bergholz, his son, Ford, and two daughters, Flora and Alta, are the plaintiffs. Carl Johnson of Salineville is the defendant.

Ford Miller asks $20,000, Flora Miller, $15,000, Alta Miller, $5,000, and Fred Miller, $3,875. The first three claim injuries of a permanent nature.

The plaintiffs charge Johnson with responsibility for the crash, alleging that he was negligent in the operation of his car in that he was traveling on the wrong side of the road when he crashed into their automobile.

"Sitdown strikes are illegal and must not be tolerated."

Edward Lamb, Ohio counsel for the CIO and who said recently that Bricker was a "stooge" for the "old gang of Republicans," commented that Bricker's "speeches blossom with generalities."

"We still have to hear his position on lively issues for which labod demands an answer," he added.

Meanwhile 2,000 members of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee (CIO) voted at a Labor day picnic at Cleveland to support Sawyer and U. S. Sen. Robert J. Bulkley.

The order of railway conductors voted to indorse Bricker, F. E. Barton, chairman of the Ohio state legislative board, said at Columbus.

Steady March Of Mourners Pays Last Respects To Beloved Churchman

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—Persons from all walks of life and of all religious beliefs today paid respect to the late Patrick Cardinal Hayes, whose body lay in state at the cardinalate in the rear of St. Patrick's cathedral.

The doors of the residence were thrown open at 9:45 a. m. and with picked city police standing at attention at each corner of the catafalque, mourners began a steady march, stopping briefly at the coffin to make the sign of the cross, or in other ways to denote their respect for the "Cardinal of Charity."

As the procession passed from the bier of the cardinal, who died at his home near Monticello Sunday, the entire block covered by St. Patrick's cathedral and the cardinalate was patrolled by policemen.

ROME, Sept. 6—Camillo Cardinal Laurenti, prefect of the sacred congregation of rites, died today of a heart attack. He was 76.

Cardinal Laurenti was the second cardinal to die within three days — Patrick Cardinal Hayes of New York died Sunday — and the fifth this year. His death reduced the college of cardinals to 64 members, of whom 35 are Italians and 29 of other nationalities.

GIRL BRAVES BLAZING BARN TO SAVE STOCK

$4,000 Loss Set In Razing Of Columbiana Building

Special To The Review.

COLUMBIANA, Sept. 6.—A 16-year-old girl braved showers of sparks from a burning barn to rescue 10 frenzied cattle and the family auto Monday night when flames razed the structure for an estimated loss of $4,000 on a farm near here.

A hog and a quantity of farm equipment were lost. The girl, Margery Ferguson, junior in Fairfield centralized school, was alone on the farm of her mother, Mrs. Eva Ferguson, when she observed the flames breaking through the roof of the two-story frame structure.

She hurriedly called neighbors, then entered the barn, releasing the cattle. The animals were quickly herded into pasture. The girl then reentered the barn and maneuvered the auto out of danger.

Neighbors saved some of the machinery before Columbiana firemen arrived and kept the flames from spreading to nearby buildings.

The barn mow was filled with hay and straw and Mrs. Ferguson assumes spontaneous combustion was responsible for starting the fire. The farm is on the Columbiana-Springfield rd. and is near the intersection of routes 14 and 7.

The loss is partially covered by insurance. The flames halted hundreds of motorists in the late Labor day traffic and more than 300 autos were parked on the highways in the vicinity.

The hay still was smouldering today.

World Of Stamps

By JAMES B. HATCHER

THE design of the new Dominican Republic stamps honoring the centenary of the Trinitarian, a secret society of revolutionary patriots, is without question unattractive. But the occasion of the issue is interesting.

Juan Pablo Duarte founded the society in Santo Domingo (now Ciudad Trujillo) July 16, 1838, with the aim of separating from Haiti to form a free republic. Duarte was 25, and his two copatriots, Francisco del Rosario Sanchez and Ramon Matias Mella, were even younger.

They started with nine members, dividing in groups of three in imitation of the Holy Trinity. Each member was expected to line up three more, and so the society grew. On February 27, 1844, the Trinitarians decided the time had come for an uprising. Mella led the attack on the Baluarte, Haitian garrison, and took it.

The uprising was successful and the Trinitarians' tri-color became the flag of a new republic. The flag appears—in natural colors—in the upper right corner of the new stamp design, and the garrison in upper left. The central portion is devoted to the Trinitarians' oath, framed in a triangle bearing the names of the three founders along its sides.

The set consists of 1-cent green, 3-c violet and 10-c orange, with the flag in red, white and blue in each case.

Photos For Albums

Collectors who like to illustrate their collections of U. S. stamps with copies of the pictures which were used for the designs will be pleased by the new service of the Smithsonian Institution. It plans to sell dull or glossy print photographs, 8 by 10 inches, of the original subjects for all commemoratives from the Newburgh issue on.

Australia used to depict its famous duck-billed platypus on revenue stamps, but on September 1 a 9-pence pictorial stamp of the regular issue will show this strange animal, Zoo collectors will rejoice.

Two provisionals have been reported from China for regular postage—8 cents on 40-c orange (Hsuang Hsing) and 10-c on 25c blue (Sun Yatsen).

The $1 Wilson stamp which goes on first-day sale at Washington August 29, will be the first high value of the presidential series to appear. Its design differs from that of the low values, including stars and foliate borders. The stamp will be printed in violet and black and the head of Wilson has been taken from a medal supplied by the Mint.

The plate numbers will be above the stamps numbered 4 and 5 with bi-colored guide-line marker between.

Ohio old age payments had increased rather than decreased.

"If the ratio of exceptions to the payments as shown by the last audit is applied to the period since that date the total exceptions will amount to well in excess of $2,000,000," Bingham said. He added that state must bear full expense of payments made to persons not eligible under the social security act.

Fair Hearings Denied

Bingham charged that fair hearings had not been given dissatisfied applicants and recipients and they had no adequate procedure through which to submit their complaints. He asserted there was no single agency administering the program in Ohio.

"Statistics furnished by the state upon which the social security board necessarily relies in determining the amount of grants made to the state," Bingham said, "have been based upon inaccurate reports which a supervisor of a section of the state agency stated had been doctored and juggled in the subdivision offices."

He charged standards and requirements of the Ohio civil service law had been flouted in choosing administration personnel and added the hearing would show incompetency among old age assistance division employes.

Bingham told the board one of the purposes for submitting testimony regarding charges of politics in administration of the Ohio old age assistance plan would be to show "one of the major and perhaps principal causes for the deficiencies in the administration of the Ohio plan."

Needy Aged Suffering

Miss Jane Hoey, director of the board's bureau of public assistance, testified that operation of the old age system in Ohio had been ineffective and caused unnecessary suffering on the part of the needy aged.

"Because of its interest in and concern for aged persons in Ohio," she said, "the social security board has patiently endeavored, as the record shows, to correct the deficiencies of operation through counseling on the part of its field and office staff.

"It has preferred to try to perfect improvements through negotiations rather than by the drastic action of withdrawing federal funds, as it is empowered to do under section four of title one of the social security act.

"It is apparent now, however, that efforts on the part of the board have accomplished very little. Therefore, the only recourse left to it was to call this hearing and consider what could be done to secure prompt, adequate and humane care for the needy aged in Ohio and whether the Ohio plan for giving aid to the aged is now being administered in conformity with provisions" of the social security act, Miss Hoey said.

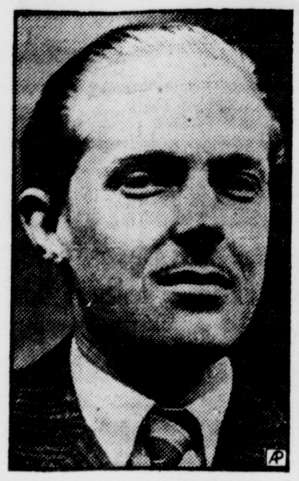
COUNT BLEEDS TO DEATH



The Count of Covadonga, 31, eldest son of former King Alfonso of Spain, died today as a result of injuries received in an auto accident in Florida. The injuries in themselves were not severe but the count's condition was complicated by hemophilia, when the blood stream refuses to clot with the result a small cut may cause the victim to bleed to death.

RECIPROCITY AT ISSUE IN MAINE'S ELECTION

By The Associated Press.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 6.—A Maine election campaign in which the new deal figured largely, particularly in its reciprocal trade program, jogged toward a windup today.

On next Monday, two months before other states elect, Maine voters will select a governor, decide whether three Republicans asking reelection, or their Democratic foes, should sit in the U. S. house of representatives, and choose state and county officers.

Gov. Lewis O. Barrows (R) seeks reelection over his Democratic predecessor, Lewis J. Brann, a would-be third termer. The gubernatorial ballot also contains the name of William V. Tabbutt, Communist.

AUTOMOBILE MISHAP FATAL TO COVADONGA

Former Spanish King's Son Victim Of Hemophilia

By The Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 6.—The Count of Covadonga, 31, eldest son of former King Alfonso of Spain, bled to death today from cuts about the head suffered in an automobile accident.

He was riding in a machine driven by Miss Mildred Gaydon, 25, when the vehicle swerved from Biscayne boulevard and struck a pole. The count suffered severe lacerations of the forehead, a possible fracture of the skull and his right leg was broken.

The one-time heir to the Spanish throne who, for love of a Cuban girl, renounced his royal rights and titles, suffered throughout his life from the Battenberg malady, hemophilia, a condition which causes its victims to bleed excessively from the slightest wounds.

The disease circumscribed the prince's every activity and kept him almost continuously on the brink of death. Occurring only in the men of the Battenberg line—that of his mother, the former Queen Victoria—it was transmitted by the women of the family to their sons through generation after generation. The women themselves were free from it.

Other ailments, some of which persisted because his heriditary malady prevented proper treatment for them made the tall, slender, blonde ex-crown prince frail and a cripple. A malignant tumor in one leg, which could not be relieved by surgery because the cut of a knife probably would be fatal, was the cause of an especially serious illness in Havana in February, 1936. Twenty blood transfusions saved him that time.

MINISTER HOLDS GOSPEL REMAINS AS MAJOR FORCE

Rev. Lawther Asserts Bible Lives Despite Lack Of Faith In Many

The power of the gospel remains evident despite the lack of faith, some of which is indicated by religious leaders themselves, declared Rev. J. H. Lawther in his sermon Sunday morning in the First Presbyterian church.

He preached on "The Glorious Gospel" upon return from his annual vacation, basing his discussion on extracts of sermons heard at the annual conference of pastors at Winona Lake.

Lack Of Belief Cited

He quoted one of the ministers as pointing out the lack of faith shown by a test made among a group of ministers. Many of these, he pointed out, acknowledged they did not believe in some of the basic, fundamental doctrines of many of the Christian denominations.

"There were those who did not believe in the doctrine of the trinity. How any one can be a preacher and deny the deity of Christ is beyond my explanation. Others, the minister at Winona Lake said, did not believe in the scriptural story of creation; there were those who denied the existence of the devil. There were those denying his resthe special revelation to man of God's truth. Others thought Him not coequal with God and had no faith in His atonement upon the cross for the sins of mankind. There were those denying his resurrection.

Differed With Principles

"Some confessed not believing in the fall of man through Adam and others contended there were no special virtues in the Lord's supper commemoration or of baptism, while some said that people should be received into the church who were moral in their lives no matter what they might believe.

"It is well to inquire what will be the result of such lack of faith in the world?" Rev. Lawther asked.

"It is apparent there has been much loss of faith in historical doctrines which preachers of old declared had been given to the fathers. But the gospel is not as opiate as some hold. Rather it is that which made martyrs of believers. The gospel, glorious, will not lose its power," the pastor concluded.

Minister Says Effort Is Required For Belief

"None can go far in seeking God unless there is an effort made to find Him," said Rev. Girard Patterson, Cleveland archdeacon, in his sermon Sunday morning in St. Stephen's Episcopal church. He filled the pulpit in the absence of Rev. R. K. Caulk, the pastor.

No mere belief in a creed, but the independent and personal experience, makes for the certainty in the belief of God, the minister said.

"Christ may be met at the sacrament of Holy communion, at the altar rail and once perceived and accepted men and women will be so touched by God that they can go forth and do the works of God," the pastor concluded.

Christian Principles Urged For Industrial Use

Problems of labor and industry could be adjusted easily were conferences between them animated by Christian principles, said Rev. William Dwight Heaston in the First Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning.

He spoke on a Labor day theme, "We Are Workers Together," and said only the realization that all are workers is required to bring about an idealism of industrial conditions.

"It is God's plan in life that all should work. Life really looms as a partnership between business leaders and working men. It is a union much like marriage. Each side or group must agree and be willing to give and take to make the union ideal and successful," he concluded.

'Childish Folk' Theme Of Sermon In East End

World conditions are chaotic and human problems remain unsolved because the building of the kingdom of God is not looked on as a required project, said Rev. Edward R. Reed in the Pennsylvania ave. Methodist Episcopal church Sunday night. His topic was "Childish Folk."

"Thus it has come about that in the failure to recognize the fact of God and the building of his kingdom men have become as children at play in their attempted adjustment of international relationships. And because men are not as God-fearing as they should be capital and labor stand pitted against each other and their mutual problems continue to be unsettled. Selfish interests are allowed to have first place with no permanent results in solving the differences between capital and labor," the pastor said.

Spreading Gospel Held Inspiration Of Ministry

Christ believed that men and women of the world should lead Christlike lives, said John Stump, seminary student, during his sermon Sunday morning in St. John's Lutheran church.

He added that spreading of the gospel is the inspiration of the ministry and said "to be like Christ, each must surrender to Him and His ideals."

Mr. Stump, of New Castle, Pa. and a student in Mt. Airy seminary, Philadelphia, occupied the vacant pulpit for the second successive Sunday.

Announcement was made of a meeting of the Sunday School Teachers and Officers' association in the Sunday school rooms Tuesday night.

Nazi Sea Might Keeps Pace With Land Force

BERLIN—(Correspondence of the Associated Press).

Germany's might afloat is growing at a pace to match her feverish rearmament on land and in the air.

More than 80 ships of war are rising in shipyards, are nearing completion or are on draftsmen's boards in the race to develop the Nazi war fleet to full treaty strength.

All the sea strength Germany could muster in 1933, when Adolf Hitler came to power, was 12 torpedo boats of 800 tons, five 6,000-ton cruisers and the 10,000-ton "pocket" battleship Deutschland, armed with 11-inch guns.

When Hitler wanted to impress Admiral Nicholas Horthy, regent of Hungary, who made a state visit to Germany last month, he paraded virtually all of Germany's fleet, 117 vessels—battleships, cruisers, submarines, torpedo boats, destroyers and smaller craft.

Under the 1935 naval agreement with Great Britain, Hitler pledged Germany to adhere to a ratio of 35 to 100. Naval experts say that when Germany has built up to 35 percent of Britain's tonnage she will have a modern fleet capable of defending her vital sea lanes.

Germany began rearming openly in 1935. Since then, under Admiral General Erich Raeder, the fleet has developed rapidly. It is estimated officially that Germany is entitled to a battleship tonnage of 255,000 tons; aircraft carriers, 87,000 tons; cruisers and destroyers 300,000 tons; and 33,700 tons for submarines under the agreement with Britain.

Two ships of the Deutschland type, the Admiral Scheer and the Admiral Graf Spee, were commissioned before the Nazis tossed the Versailles restrictions overboard.

Germany's largest battleships so far are two of 26,000 tons each, the Gneisenau, already in service, and the Scharnhorst, soon to be ready. Each mounts nine 11-inch guns.

Two 35,000-ton battleships, carrying 15 inch guns and two 19,250-ton aircraft carriers are under construction. The Bluecher and Admiral Hipper, heavy cruisers of 10,000 tons each with eight-inch guns, are almost ready and a third, the Prince Eugene, was launched during Admiral Horthy's visit.

Other ships completed or almost ready for service included 16 destroyers of 1,625 tons each, armed with five 4.8-inch guns; 37 submarines of which 24 are of 250 tons, 10 to 500 and three of 700; 18 600-ton torpedo boats designed for coast defenses; 13 swift motorboats equipped to carry torpedoes; 40 mine-layers and mine sweepers.

Ships projected include 10 destroyers of 1,811 tons each; 31 submarines and 11 torpedo-motorboats.

Besides the active fleet, Germany has a number of training craft, including sailing vessels, on which cadets are being trained to sail the men-o'-war as fast as they glide down the ways.

4 ALARMS KEEP LOCAL FIRE EQUIPMENT BUSY

Four alarms were answered by the fire department over the holiday week-end. In two of the calls there was slight damage.

The first call, received Saturday at 4:20 p. m., was a grass fire on land owned by George Myler in Pleasant Heights. Firemen beat out the flames with brooms.

The next call Sunday at 2:55 p. m. was from the home of William Scufert in Dixonville where a mattress and bed clothing was ignited, firemen said, from a cigaret.

Another call was received Monday at 4:35 p. m. when a crosstie was found smouldering in the Sixth st. viaduct. The blaze was attributed to a cigaret or to sparks from a Pennsylvania shifting engine.

Patrolman John Russell discovered a fire in the rear seat upholstering of an automobile belonging to J. B. Maley which was parked in front of the Maley home in 327 Vine st., today at 3:27 a. m.

WAGE-HOUR DIRECTOR BIDS FOR COOPERATION

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6—Wage-hour Administrator Elmer F. Andrews said last night that industry itself would be largely responsible for enforcement of the new law.

Calling for "wholehearted cooperation" by employers, Andrews asked in a radio address that they "report promptly any competition based on violation of this law" as a service to other employers, to workers and the public.

He said he intended to depend upon the people, and "not upon an army of inspectors from Washington," to make the law work after it becomes effective Oct. 24.

Andrews said he expected to promulgate certain basic interpretations and definitions by Oct. 1, and to issue a few essential regulations shortly after that time.

100,000 Fair Visitors Stroke County Deer, Now She Feels Chilly

Admiring Hands Rubbed Fur Off Tame Animal, Feature Of Scout's Exhibit

Special To The Review.

LISBON, Sept. 6.—If "Betty" feels chilly these late summer nights she may blame it on spectators at the Ohio state fair at Columbus.

"Betty" is the young deer that attracted so much attention from fair visitors. She was part of the Columbiana county wildlife exhibit entered in the junior fair and Scout Executive Charles Felton today estimated 100,000 fair visitors stopped and stroked her back and head with the result most of her summer fur was rubbed off.

Columbiana Boy Scouts won second place in the statewide competition in the junior fair.

Mr. Felton and Scouts Paul Fisher and Robert Clark of East Liverpool, John Smith of rural Wellsville, and Walter Halloway of Columbiana were in charge of the county exhibit.

Called a wildlife exhibit, it included "Betty," tame deer from the Scout reservation, 'coons, squirrels, pheasants, three species of snakes, a possum and a groundhog.

There were 51 exhibits. The Dayton Scouts won first place.

Unnecessary Roughness

APPARENTLY, all the participants in Maryland's political rough house are going to be up and about as usual this week without even a limp to give them away.

Sen. Tydings may have been crushed inwardly by the coming and going of the Roosevelt entourage, but he won't show it. Neither will Rep. Lewis, who must have had the wind knocked out of him with back slapping.

Next Tuesday, Marylanders will give a decision; so will Georgians, who had a previous experience with how rough politics can be in these high pressure days. In the meantime it isn't likely that the President's objection to "unnecessary roughness," as voiced in Maryland Tuesday (over a nationwide hookup) will change the character of the game being played.

For better or worse, the impression will stand that the team in possession of the ball started to play rough first by purging certain persons it wanted to get out of the game. If they fight back, that is their inherent American privilege, a principle of sportsmanship which Mr. Roosevelt seems willing to recognize.

Stretched To Two

THE modern winning streak of the United States in Davis cup matches now has been stretched to two challenge rounds.

The important thing is that nothing seems to be threatening it seriously at the moment. The combination of Budge, Mako and Riggs which performed so well against Australia depends heavily on Budge, of course, and Budge happens to be considering a professional career, but even so an American succession of successes in Davis cup play is likely.

Tennis supremacy runs in streaks. This country's last streak was from 1920 to and including 1926, when Big Bill Tilden was the world's greatest singles player. From 1927 to 1933 the French had a similar streak, for which they can thank the skill and durability of Cochet and Boretra. Starting in 1933 and continuing up to last year the British reigned supreme, with the redoubtable Perry. Surely, the finger of destiny having pointed this way, it will not be bitten off short by anything so relatively unimportant as the temptation to turn professional which bedevils all young Americans who amount to anything.

If it comes to that, perhaps the Lawn Tennis association can take up a collection.

Patrick, Cardinal Hayes

THE death of Patrick, Cardinal Hayes, was a sobering touch on the hearts of Catholics during the holiday week-end.

Cardinal Hayes had won high eminence in the Catholic church, but his highest eminence was the love and respect of his fellow men. The church, itself founded on love and faith, is fortunate when it can enrich itself with the services of men who embody its principles so completely.

Certainly Cardinal Hayes, himself, could have asked for no greater honor and satisfaction than he derived from his career—a reminder to all who seek a full life that it will be found in unselfishness, devoutness and faithful service to great ideals. Only a few may attain the office of ecclesiastical prince filled so capably by Cardinal Hayes, but all may at least strive to attain the princely character which qualified him for a cardinalate.

$25,000 Cats

THERE may be merit in Sen. Reynolds big idea of letting Great Britain settle its war debt by giving Bermuda, Newfoundland and a strip across western Canada to the United States. The debt is more than four billion dollars, though, and that would buy a lot of real estate in the open market.

The senator also proposes taking the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon in settlement of the French debt, which also runs about four billion dollars. Then, to bring the real estate deal up to date, he would take lower California in exchange for the claims against Mexico which aren't going to be paid anyway.

We wonder if Sen. Reynolds has heard about the little boy who set a price of $50,000 on his dog and refused to come down a cent when an amused stranger offered him a dollar.

Next day the same stranger saw the kid and was told that the dog had been sold for $50,000. "How'd you find anyone with that much cash?" asked the stranger.

"I didn't," replied the kid. "But I found a fellow willing to swap two $25,000 cats."

Weather Sniffing

BESIDES the hay fever snuffler, whose snuffling this year leaves nothing to be desired, there is the ordinary weather sniffer.

He is the fellow who "points" the approaching season with his nose, as a bird dog points a pheasant. His nose, as well as his eyes and ears, are brought to bear on the subject of weather.

The good weather sniffer will be standing in front of an open window, perhaps. Suddenly, he will stiffen and take a long, thoughtful sniff of the air coming in from the outside.

"Sure is beginning to smell like fall," he will say in a manner permitting no doubt that he knows what he's talking about. Whereupon, all others within hearing will imitate his sniffing and chime in, "Yessir, it sure is beginning to smell like fall."

The same thing takes place in the spring, of course, but usually varied to the extent of a "Whoopee!" added to the remark, it being the nature of spring to make the weather sniffer extremely happy, while fall merely makes him thoughtful.

'Internes'

College Graduates Work Free At U. S. Posts For Opportunity To Show Worth And Advance Selves

By WEBB WALDRON

(This article is reprinted from Survey Graphic.)

RECENTLY an ambitious Texas college grad hitch-hiked 400 miles to the state capital to interview a man who might give him a chance to work in a federal bureau in Washington for a year without pay! When he landed the job, 'is fellow townsmen were so proud they chipped together to pay his living expenses for the coming year.

Fifty college graduates, boys and girls, are in Washington this autumn doing the same thing—working in government departments without salary. They are called "internes." Like internes in hospitals, they learn by watching and doing.

Some of them are paying their own expenses; some have fellowships from colleges; some are financed by the home town folks. Internes are busy, too, in many state and city governments.

Youth itself started this eager reaching toward public service. Four years ago, a committee of delegates to the National Student federation asked themselves why something practical could not be done to open government careers to college graduates. Out of their demand grew the National Institute of Public Affairs, with headquarters in Washington.

Its aim is the tieup of college and government by a system of federal internes. The first year's experimental work was so successful that the institute obtained a Rockefeller Foundation grant for enlarging its activities.

Each spring the leading colleges with courses in public administration send in a list of their most promising students who hope to get into public service. The director of the institute, Dr. Frederick M. Davenport, then journeys through the country interviewing them.

ONE of last year's internes spent part of his time with the interstate commerce commission, part with the American Association of Railroads, part with a trucking company association. Now he is back at Harvard, working for his advanced degree, training himself for an important ICC job for the secretaryship of a big trade association.

Dr. Davenport is glad to have some of his internes go into commercial life. It is invaluable to get men into key positions in industry or trade who have some understanding of governmental problems.

John Collier, commissioner of Indian affairs, is enthusiastic about the interne system. With a special Rockefeller foundation grant, Collier is trying out a dozen young men in the southwest.

The federal bureaus have been so impressed with the caliber and value of the internes that most of these young people have a choice of several federal jobs when they finish their interneships.

In Albany, the New York state capital, I encountered another set of lively young internes, and I found out how they got there. About a year and a half ago, Dr. William E. Mosher, director of the School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse university came to Mark Graves, New York state tax commissioner.

Mosher thought his advanced students might be assigned by the head of a state bureau to do special investigating. He asked whether Graves would like to take on some of these Syracuse boys.

Graves, a man distinguished for his work for the improvement of government personnel, persuaded the New York civil service commission to allow the state departments to take, for a limited period, a certain number of young men as junior clerks at $75 a month. The plan has justified itself.

THE University of California has a program by which a certain number of students chosen by competitive examination, combine graduate study in public administration at the university with work in the personnel office at the state capital. They have one-year appointments on the state payroll at a nominal salary.

Los Angeles county operates a plan of its own. Each year it holds examinations, open to all college graduates, for student investigators and researchers. Internes receive $50 a month for one year.

In Wisconsin an agreement has just been reached between the state and the state university by which students of exceptional ability are picked for public service scholarships. To these students the university lends up to $400 in their senior year. In return, the student agrees to serve the state after graduation for one or two years as an apprentice in a job assigned by the state personnel director.

Today, 61 colleges have set up separate programs in public administration, and the leading

A Sawyer Boost

Crystal Gazer Says White House Looms For Man Who Gave Davey Trimming In Ohio Primary Fight

POLITICAL prognosticators for magazines have been doing some interesting geuss-work about the possibility of an Ohioan in the White House at the next turn of the national election wheel.

Not long ago an expert figured out for Colliers that Arthur H. Day would defeat Robert A. Taft in the race for Republican nomination for U. S. senator and hinted that his appeal as a "man of the people" might lead him through the front door of the mansion on Washington's Pennsylvania ave.

The expert's prediction was upset by Mr. Taft's nomination and Mr. Day's defeat.

Now comes Harry Newman, styled The Senator-at-Large, in Judge Magazine, with an open letter addressed to the present occupant of the White House, Franklin D. Roosevelt. He writes:

"Permit me in confidence and with great earnestness to point out to you as I have attempted to do in the past, where, in my opinion, in that future when you have removed your hands, the success or failure of the new trend in government inspired by you rests. To come to the point quickly, it rests in the hands of Charles Sawyer, nominated on Aug. 9 for governor by the Democrats of Ohio.

"I say this, Mr. President, because he won that nomination practically alone in the grandest old rough and tumble fight that has been staged in any of the 48 states in a long, long time. He won it because he had refused to compromise on decent motives since he first expressed his intention of securing the nomination.

"IN spite of the depressing effect of a great personal family loss, in spite of it being necessary for him to be both father and mother to five fine children, despite the advice of old and practical politicians that it was an impossibility to win against the odds imposed by the most perfect political organization ever set up against a candidacy, he won.

"Last winter, prior to the Columbus dinner which was to celebrate your birthday and which he arranged, only to see the opposition try to take it out of his hands, he was supposed to be too scared by a formidable opposition to continue his candidacy. Well, sir, he didn't scare worth a hoot, and with his eyes fixed on his goal he marched straight forward and a good part of the time, alone. You know how it is when your friends are polite and wish you well, but don't do very much helping you get anywhere.

"You remember Martin L. Davey, don't you? He was Charles Sawyer's opponent and, whether you like him or not, Mr. Davey is an organizer par excellence, a fighter who will fight anybody regardless of size and without wasting much time getting into it; he swings from his ankles and has the energy of four men.

"He and Sawyer were old schoolmates nearly 30 years ago and each had a wholesome respect for the other's ability, which neither lost in the bitterness of the campaign; and I would like to wager, in spite of one having lost and the other having won, that each of them has a greater admiration for the other than he had a year ago.

"Later, as the months passed, Sawyer began to receive indorsements which were in many other states the kiss of death for the recipient. Other indorsements followed, given by people in organizations who discovered in this man a strength of character too rare these days.

"HE kept his campaign on a high plane and carried no banner for any groups of persons other than for the whole electorate, with the promise of good government. Alone, except for his 17-year-old son namesake, he drove down quiet country lanes, into sleepy river towns, in and out of teeming manufacturing centers, into the hurly burly of the big cities, and hammered, hammered, hammered on the theme of good and honest government—not a new thought for a candidate, but when you heard him say it it sounded different somehow and carried conviction.

"There wasn't a piece of political soil in the state that he didn't spade over. He kissed no babies; he made no deals for future appointments; he employed no cheap tricks; he just kept hammering, hammering, hammering on the theme of good and honest government for Ohio.

Then in the last days of this campaign the opposition pulled out all the stops against him—the shopworn old attempt to arouse bigotry, the importation of professional rabble-rousers, the story of vast sums of money, the statements that he represented classes or groups or factions—but he kept right on, up until midnight of the day before the polls closed, still hammering on just one theme; good government in the state."

In the wind-up, the Senator-at-Large says Mr. Sawyer's opponent kept clawing and tearing at his coat, pitching mud which he noticed only by a quotation from Abraham Lincoln: "Never pick off mud while it is wet; when it is dry it will fall off by itself."

In conclusion, this prediction:

"Charles Sawyer will be president of the United States one day, Mr. President, as you are. He has the mark on him. Today is a pretty good time to take notice of the most important Democrat outside of the District of Columbia. Destiny has him by the hand, and they are walking together. Yet another while and his still fresh Proskeen will be a national symbol."

Ohio Anecdotes

IN 82 YEARS of political existence, the Republicans have held 21 national conventions, beginning with the first at Philadelphia, June 17-19, 1856, nominating John C. Fremont, and the latest, at Cleveland, nominating Alfred M. Landon.

Landon was the 13th of 21 presidential candidates to be nominated on the first ballot. Others were: Abraham Lincoln, 1864; U. S. Grant, 1868 and 1872; Benjamin Harrison, 1892; William McKinley, 1900; Theodore Roosevelt, 1904; William H. Taft, 1908 and 1912; Calvin Coolidge, 1924; and Herbert Hoover, 1928 and 1932.

The all-time high was in 1880, when after 35 ballots the convention stampered to support James A. Garfield, former Ohio governor. Abraham Lincoln was nominated for his first term on the third ballot; Rutherford B. Hayes, formerly an Ohio governor, on the seventh; Charles E. Hughes, on the third, and Warren G. Harding, formerly an Ohio senator, was nominated on the 10th ballot.

Labor Law Standard

Questions And Answers Help Employer, Employe To Learn How New Legislation Will Affect Them

(The new labor standards law becomes effective Oct. 24. Already both employers and employes are flooding the office of the administrator of that law with requests that he explain specifically how the law affects them. Many of the questions cannot be answered authoritatively at this time. The Associated Press, however, lists in a series of articles (of which this is the first) many of the questions being asked and the best available answers.)

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6—

What is the purpose of the "fair labor standards act of 1938?"

To eliminate undesirable labor conditions and living standards which might burden and obstruct commerce, particularly by establishing minimum wages and maximum hours.

Who are affected by the law?

Industries engaged in interstate commerce or in the production of goods for interstate commerce and their employes.

How are these industries determined?

By an administrator, Elmer F. Andrews, whose determinations are subject to review by the courts. He will be guided by recent supreme court decisions on the subject. He hopes, prior to Oct. 24, to make determinations as to coverage and exclusions affecting as many types of employment as possible.

Are his determinations final?

No. Employers guided by them may still be subject to civil suits and the courts may decide he was wrong.

Are some industries in the stream of commerce specifically exempted?

Yes. The law exempts some from both the wage and hour provisions, others from the hourly provisions only.

Which industries are exempted from both?

Common carriers generally, fisheries, agriculture, small weekly and semi-weekly newspapers.

Which are exempted only from the hours provisions?

First processors of dairy products, cotton, cottonseed, sugar beets, maple sap, seasonal fresh fruits and vegetables and first processors within the area of production of agricultural and horticultural products generally.

Are all the employes of non-exempt industries covered by the law?

NO. The law seeks to safeguard primarily the working conditions of wage-earners, including manual laborers, mechanics and lower-paid white collar employes. It exempts employers who are in a bona fide executive, administrative, professional or local retailing capacity, seamen, fishermen and workers on sea products, agricultural workers, and generally such employers of an affected industry as do exactly the same work as those in an exempted industry. It also permits the administrator to exempt, by regulations and orders, learners, apprentices, messengers and handicapped workers.

With these exemptions, how many individual employes will be affected by the law?

It is estimated the pay of 750,000 to 1,000,000 persons and the hours of 2,500,000 persons may be affected.

What will the minimum wage be for affected employes?

For the first year, 25 cents an hour and for the next six years, 30 cents, except as higher minima may be set upon recommendations by industry committees. For later years, 40 cents, beyond which neither committees nor administrator may go.

Under what circumstances may minimum wages be lower than those specified in the law?

The administrator is directed to set up an industry committee for each industry. Before the 40-cent minimum is reached in 1945, an industry committee may recommend a lower rate than that (but never one below 25 cents an hour) if it is shown that the 40 cent rate threatens to cause curtailment of the industry's operations.

Can such a committee recommend a minimum greater than 40 cents an hour?

No.

Must the administrator accept such a committee's recommendation?

No. He may refer the problem back to the committee or to a newly selected committee.

Will such an industry committee represent employers or employes?

It will represent both and also the public; each group will have the same number of members.

Will such industry committees be functioning when the law goes into effect?

A few may have started. The administrator is directed to appoint them "as soon as practicable."

What minimum wage shall be applied pending recommendations of such a committee and action by the administrator based thereon?

That specified in the act.

'Swanee'

We Take Look At River That Brought Fame And Fortune To Composers Who Never Saw The Stream

By DAMON RUNYON

WE have been reading "Suwanee River," by Cecile Hulse Matschat, one of a series of books on the rivers of America.

The other rivers covered in the series are the Kennebec, the upper Mississippi, the Powder, James, Missouri, Sacramento, Columbia, Hudson, Ohio and Arkansas.

The last named is the river we were raised up on, so to speak. It flows through our old home town of Pueblo. It is not a very pretty river, but historic. It waters a valley where they raise the best watermelons and cantaloupes in the world.

The prettiest river in the United States is the Hudson. We do not think anyone will deny it that title. Some have called it the Rhine of America, but we think it is even prettier than the Rhine. Moreover, the Hudson is the least mean-spirited of all the rivers of America because it never permits itself to sneak up on folks along its banks.

The Suwanee is pretty, too, in spots. We will never come to love it, though, because it abounds in alligators, rattlesnakes, cottonmouth moccasins and other slimy critters for which we have no affection whatever.

The Suwanee pops out of the strange and mysterious Okefenokee swamp of Georgia, a region we have skirted briefly in pursuit of game, but never with any zest. The Okefenokee is the address of more creeping, crawling things than you can shake a stick at and is no place for a fellow whose nerves are completely shattered by the sight of a tadpole.

THE Okefenokee and the Everglades are two spots in this country that we assidiously avoid, and we will continue to avoid them until a modern St. Patrick comes along to give snakes the bum's rush.

We were in the Everglades once with a fellow poling us around a waterway in a boat and a cottonmouth moccasin dropped off a tree into the boat and gave us the fan-tods. What we say about southern swamps is that you can have them.

The Suwanee winds a matter of 240 miles from the Okefenokee down across Florida to dump itself into the gulf of Mexico 12 miles north of Cedar Keys. Enroute it picks up a number of streams and takes them with it.

The Suwanee is perhaps the best known by name of any of our rivers because of Stephen Foster's song, though in that song you leave out the "u" and sing it "'Way down upon the Swanee river."

They have built a monument to the memory of Stephen Foster on the banks of the Suwanee, though he never saw the river in his life and his original lyric is said to have been about the Pedee river. They might well build another monument to the memory of the late George Gershwin and Irving Caesar, who wrote a Suwanee song that Al Jolson used to sing.

THEY called it "Swanee," and it was the first popular hit song Gershwin ever wrote, though he never saw the Suwanee, either. Nor have Caesar or Jolson ever seen it, and it is probably a pretty good bet they could tell you where it is. However, the song made a lot more money for Gershwin and Caesar than Foster made out of his ballad.

The origin of the name of the Suwanee river is obscure. The Seminoles claim they had a chieftainness, Su-wan-nee, whose name was bestowed upon the river. Another version is that the Spanish called it San Juanito, and that Suwanee is a corruption thereof. The Mayas of Yucatan are supposed to have visited it centuries back and the Spanish priests built missions along its banks.

We think Cecile Hulse Matschat has made the story of the Suwanee positively thrilling and we would probably hasten at once to view the ground she covers in her book if it were not for those snakes. You tell where snakes are, and then go bet that is where we will never be found.

She describes the swamp people as wary and suspicious of outlanders, and strong and sturdy despite close intermarriage down through the years. The swamp is free of hookworm, pellagra and malaria because the malarial mosquito does not breed in the Okefenokee and other species are scarce.

She makes you feel all the green gloom and mystery of the Okefenokee and gives you goose-flesh telling of its crawling creatures but she also lets you in for much of the beauty of the Suwanee as it slowly slinks to the gulf.

Her pictures of the strange people who live in the Okefenokee are terrific. They are like characters out of fiction, speaking an odd linga of their own that brings in words of probably Elizabethan origin. They probably go back to ancestors who came from Gen. Oglethorpe's settlement at Savannah, and from Ebenezer and Darien and Frederica. The authoress thinks the inhabitants of the Okefenokee are among the purest Anglo-Saxon stock in America.

Profit In Stamps

AS THE department of justice presses its campaign to outlaw price fixing and monopoly, the postoffice department discloses, and boasts, that it does the neatest bit of profiteering in the land.

For 7 cents it can manufacture a sheet of 100 three cent stamps, sell them to a stamp collector and reap a clear profit of $2.93. It could profit even more if stamp collectors bought whole sheets of $5 stamps, which don't cost much more to print than the three centers. But stamp collectors don't buy the costly ones wholesale.

So profitable is the business of selling to stamp collectors that the department is thinking of taking a truck load on a transcontinental tour to drum up business. As one postman calculated, if a million people could be persuaded to start collecting stamps and in the course of time bought $100 worth each, that would be $100,000,000, almost clear profit—as long as they keep them in their collections. If they use them to send letters the profit is gone. It costs the department all of three cents to carry the letter. It all sounds sort of dreamy eyed to us, but then, we don't collect stamps.

Anyway, the truck isn't going for a while. There's a hitch. Taking a million dollars worth of stamps across the country without any escort seems risky. If an armed escort went along, it would eat up part of the profit. Mr. Farley hasn't solved that one yet.

Incidentally, the people who buy those $5 stamps are bankers and movie companies. They plaster them on insured securities and on films being hurried abount the country.

Washington's Coal Mine

THERE'S a coal mine in the nation's capital.

It's visited daily by hundreds of persons who wind through the twisting corridors of the Smithsonian Institution and suddenly find themselves in a dark and dim room.

A mine entry cuts off to the left, a mine car emerges from the dark recesses. To the right, a track swings into a mine room, complete in all details, except machinery.

There is a six-foot vein of coal ready to be mined. Miners, attired in safety hats, tramp over the dark floors in metal toed shoes.

But the Smithsonian Institute, which is cooperating with the U. S. bureau of mines in the novel exhibition, isn't satisfied.

"We won't be able to put the mine into operation until we can get machinery," said Frank A. Taylor, curator in charge of the mine. "We've been trying for months to get an undercutting machine and a locomotive.

"But our trouble is we can't pay for the machines. Almost everything else we need has been donated by mine equipment companies, by coal operators or by individual miners."

Taylor said some mine equipment companies were willing to furnish equipment that they wanted to put in their latest models. The institute wants machines that have seen some use.

3 DISTRICTS ASK OFFERS ON RIVER DAM EQUIPMENT

Pittsburgh, Huntington And Rock Island Engineers on List For New Material

Government engineers in the Pittsburgh, Huntington and Rock Island, Ill. districts have announced opening of bids of interest to fabricators in this area.

Bids for butterfly valve frame assemblies and blades for use in Monongahela river locks will be opened in the Pittsburgh engineer's office today calling for 40-day delivery of some four tons of cast metal.

3 Boiler Purchases

Today in the Huntington district bids will be opened for a battery of three boilers for the United States steamer Iriquois. With a steam pressure of 275 pounds, the boilers will measure 38 and a half inches in diameter and will be 21 feet long.

Thursday Rock Island engineers will open bids for construction of esplanade work at dam 12, Mississippi river.

The Nashville Bridge Co. is working on a $43,870 contract for two steel dump scows for Huntington district engineers.

While the government lighthouse tender Greenbrier is coming up the Ohio for replacement of boilers at Pittsburgh, the vessel is cutting brush and weeds near light aids and painting the structures.

New Martinsville will sponsor motorboat races Monday in connection with the centennial the town is observing. River interests have been notified by the Huntington engineers.

New Line Charters Boat

When the Steel City headed south last week she was under charter to the Central Barge Co. of Chicago, newly-formed shipping concern, and enroute for Mississippi river points.

Capt. Albert C. Ingersoll, son of one of the officers of the barge company, is using his own crew on the Iron City Sand and Gravel Corp. towboat and has retained Christ Biegenho as chief engineer of the steamer.

Movement at dam 8 included the Plymouth down with four barges of pipe and one barge of tinplate, the Fairplay down with four barges of pipe, four barges of coal and one barge of gasoline, the Pioneer up with three empties, one derrickboat and one barge of contractor's equipment, the Coal City up light, the A. O. Ackard up with six empties, the Diesel down light and the C. W. Talbot up with six empties.

99 Percent Accuracy Revealed In New Public Opinion Poll

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 6.—Ninety-nine percent accuracy in a new type of public opinion poll was vouched for today at the convention here of the American Association of Applied Psychology.

The polls, developed over a six-year period by the Psychological Corporation of New York, were described by Dr. Henry C. Link, under the name of psychological barometers. They were intended primarily to give national advertisers information on buying habits.

But, Dr. Link said, the barometers also have been tried privately on political issues. No letters are permitted. That survival of the old straw vote, he said, is not always reliable.

The polls are made by 55 psychologists who send out 300 to 500 trained and paid questioners for personal interviews in 48 cities and towns. A cross-section of the population is selected for the interviews.

Wording of the questions, Dr. Link said, is so vital that with a change of only two words results can be changed by 10 to 20 percent. In that case, asking 50,000 persons will not give a result as accurate as putting the right question to 5,000.

Citing how a poll can be "loaded" by the type of question, he told of two experiments by the corporation on a national political issue. In one case 40,000 housewives were asked, "In your opinion is this issue a good thing, or not?"

The answers were 92 percent "yes." They were wrong as a test of public sentiment.

When the same issue was polled with the question, "From what you have seen of it in your neighborhood do you believe it is working well?" The "yes" answers dropped by half, to 42 percent. Subsequent events showed that the second question brought out more nearly the real public verdict.

The polls, Dr. Link said, do not forecast what developments two months later will show.

As an example of swaying opinions by well chosen words, he cited an advertisement of an article of universal use in the United States. An advertising campaign by one manufacturer advised readers to imitate something for which there is widespread respect.

The result not only boosted this maker's sale while competitors were standing still, but swung many buyers away from traditional types of the article to others ressembling the one advertised.

The new type polls, Dr. Link declared, showed this change while it was under way and being denied by the opposition manufacturers.

schools are beset by far more applicants than they can admit. For government in America in the last five years has gained a power and drama it never had before, an importance it is likely to continue to possess.

Public service now carries an adventure which used to be found in business when it had more of the aspects of empire-building.

ALONG with this, the elders of our generation are beginning to realize that since government is interpenetrating our lives as never before and is likely to go on doing so, whether we like it or not, we ought to look sharp to the quality of people who administer our laws.

In England, the government for years has regularly picked exceptional university men and systematically trained them for top policy-determining jobs.

Hitherto, in America, a filing clerk, stenographer or botanist who stayed at his job long enough and was reasonably competent might rise by the sheer inertia of seniority to a high administrative post, though he had none of the qualifications for a managerial job. But fortunately for the young aspirant in public service, our federal government is now really beginning to recognize the job of administration—the need for men who can plan, cordinate and direct the work of bureau specialties.

To make this a real opportunity, the United States civil service commission should set up an examination for "junior administrative assistant." This would be designed especially for college graduates who have specialized in public administration and have spent an interneship in city, state or federal government.

Open government to this stream of youths, eager for public service, trained and inspired by distinguished teachers, and the effect on America will be momentous. It will give government a new efficiency and tone. It will give our people a higher respect for government.

Limpet Lives

THE weather was clear and fine There was no danger of fog just now and Willy Nilly enjoyed drifting about in his boat, learning to know the ways of so many little sea creatures. There were limpets on the rocks, too. They were in pointed shells and they were sticking as fast to the rocks as they could. They didn't want any sea birds to pluck them off for meals.

"We'd rather," said one limpet when Willy Nilly asked a question or two, "move around when it is dark and the birds can't see us so well.

"If we're to have limpet lives," he continued, "we must fasten ourselves to what safety we can—and the rocks are our safety."

Again Willy Nilly stopped, for a star fish was saying:

"I was only half a star fish once."

"What?" exclaimed Willy Nilly.

"Yes," said the star fish, "an accident happened. I was cut in two and so only half of me remained. The other half grew until it became a whole star fish and I grew until I became a whole one, as well.

"So there are two of us. We won't let accidents upset our star-fish lives. We can overcome all accidents and live."

Christopher Columbus Crow was plying nearby. He perched on the bow of Willy Nilly's boat. "There's going to be a slight mist soon, even though it was clear so short a time ago. I can see it coming," he cawed. "And I'm going to fly out to the light house beyond and help the keeper send fog warnings. You'd better beach your boat!"

Daily Horoscope

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, Sept. 7

THE ASTRAL indications are for a rather sudden and precipitate move or journey on this day, which may not have a very happy reaction on the state of mind. The upheaval may not be a welcome one and may have devastating results.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of sudden upheaval or a quite unforeseen journey that may have a disruptive influence on the general state of affairs. There may be a surprising turn in money matters, with some opening for loss through loans, but with an upturn in property values or a lagging investment. Elders and friends may have influence. Cultivate them.

A child born on this day may be the adventurous or romantic type, with leanings toward the occult and ancient studies. It may attract friends among the elderly, although it may be considered eccentric and difficult.

Tri-State 4-H Club News

Hancock County

NINETEEN of Hancock county's 34 projects exhibited at the recent regional 4-H club fair at Oglebay park received first, second or third prizes. The best work of Wetzel, Marshall, Brooke and Ohio counties also was on display.

First place awards, providing the project grades above 80 percent received a $5 scholarship, second place—3 and third place $2. Hancock county won eight firsts, eight seconds, and three thirds. Those placing first were:

Billy Hillyard, White Eagle club, poultry I.

Harry Walker, Fort Jefferson, handicraft II.

Frank Maple, Hiawatha, dairy I.

Jane Timonthy, Pioneer, flowers

Burdine Helmick, Wiwo, Home Beautification II.

Patricia McDonald, Fort Jefferson, trees.

Betty Richmond, Minnehaha, meal planning II.

Patricia McDonald, Fort Jefferson, insects.

Second places were:

Harriet Thomas, Fort Jefferson, sewing I.

Rita Wehner, Minehaha, sewing III.

Eva Brewer, White Eagle, baking II.

Pauline Rose, White Eagle, baking I.

Violet Hogue, Pioneer, canning II.

Virginia Watson, Lucky Tigers, canning III.

Mary Dorothy Cole, Minnehaha, meal planning I.

Bernice Wehner, Minnehaha, club room I.

Third place were:

Georgene Minesinger, Haiwatha, canning I.

Betty Lou Cotherman, Fort Jefferson, baking I.

Ernest Hogue, Pioneer, poultry II.

For the first time in many years, Hancock county club members were outstanding in the athletic competition in the regional fair.

The boys' softball team won over Ohio county in the semi-finals and scored an 8-4 victory over Marshall county in the finals.

Tnese two teams had played during the week of county camp and Marshall won by a small margin, but the tables were turned when the teams met again at the regional fair.

The softball game was the only large event won by Hancock county but there were entries in every other activity. The boys' volleyball team got to the finals as did the girls' softball team. Participation was the chief goal set for the athletics this year and Hancock county achieved that goal by representation in every event.

Many clubs had carried on an athletic program in county activities during the summer season, a fact which no doubt influenced regional participation.

Two of Hancock county 4-H judging teams placed first in the regional competition. The poultry judging team, composed of Ernest and Denver Hogue, and Bob Brewer, won first and will represent the northern Panhandle region in the state contest at the jubilee at Jacksons Mill, Sept. 19-24.

Leah Porter and Isabel Cunningham, members of the baking judging team, won first place from four other teams. These girls judged muffins, bread, cake, and breakfast menus. Leah had the highest individual score of the 10 girls.

Betty Richmond and Violet Hogue, members of the canning judging team, placed second.

Leonard Watson, senior 4-H council member, and president of the Seneca 4-H club, received the highest honorary recognition in club work in the state of West Virginia when he was chosen for all-star membership at the recent state boys' camp at Jacksons Mill. Walter C. Gumbel, former county agent, was selected as an honorary member.

The all-star organization recognizes those 4-H club members who through the years have established an outstanding record of service in all phases of four-fold development.

Others in Hancock county who are all-stars are: Dorothy Miller, Eleanor Nichol, Garnet Protzman, Edna Cotherman Vincent, Betty Carson Shaw, Ruth Glass, Bob Herron and Lester Miller.

The Shawnee 4-H club held its monthly meeting Thursday at the home of Miss Jane McSwegin near Newell and elected officers who will begin their term at the next meeting Oct. 6 at the home of J. E. Cunningham.

Officers elected were: Don Harcher, president; Marjorie Marshall, vice president; Miss McSwegin, secretary; Maude Nelda Cunningham, treasurer, and Albert Marshall, reporter Miss Garnet Protzman, county agent, Isabel Cunningham and Harry and Alvin Marshall were others present at the meeting featured by singing.

The Sunlit Road

By TOM T. JONES

DONALD HULL, automobile salesman and World war veteran, has two letters written in English which he found in an old chateau near the front lines in France during the war.

The house, no doubt, had been occupied by members of the French nobility before the opening of hostilities. The letters were written in 1903.

Mr. Hull came upon them while he and several of his buddies were looking through the old house, wrecked by the shells of enemy guns. He also picked up two cards which carried the names of "Baron Grenier" and "Baronne Grenier," respectively.

One letter was dated July 28, 1903, dated at San Velno, Romano. It was addressed to Baroness Grenier and was signed "Harry Piercy." He told of his approaching marriage "with beautiful Deanne" and also referred to daily rides in a "coach and four" and "galloping in company in the gay sport after the pack."

The second letter, dated Ports S. George, Oct. 19, 1903, was addressed to "Dear Don Grevamella," and was signed "affectionately Cynthia Garrette." The writer told of a trip she planned to India and of her wedding scheduled the following month. She said she and her husband would live in Leipzic to study German philosophy.

The old chateu, Mr. Hull recalls, was on a high elevation east of the Escaut river near Meylegen. The letters, no doubt, had been overlooked by the occupants in their haste to quit their home as the fighting moved nearer.

Mr. Hull served Co. F, 112th Engineers, while "over there." Other local men in this outfit were Henry Vondran of Clayburn Pl., George Knowles, now in the automobile business in Cleveland, and the late Hubert Chambers, who died in an auto crash in Toledo recently.

Physician Says Skin's Condition Vital To Health

Epidermis Mechanism To Regulate Temperature Of Person's Body

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

YOUR SKIN should have had a good hygienic experience this summer. It should have been aired and sunned and cleansed in ocean or lake or river. It should have been close to nature. It should have been exercised so that the working of the muscles as you walked, or played tennis or baseball, or whatever you did play, made all the skin glands function freely. Now that winter is on the way, keep it up. Your skin is a wonderful organ, and very much of your feeling of well-being depends on keeping it in condition. Be good to it.

There is a little joke that doctors like to repeat—a kind of family joke type of humor. They say that their specialty is, "the skin and its contents." That is a very fine type of doctor who can say that.

Envelope For Organs

The saying indicates as well as anything that the skin is part of the body, and that its main function is to be an envelope to the other organs.

The temperature regulating function of the skin is a most wonderful and delicate mechanism. When one thinks that in health the temperature of the body hardly varies a fraction of a degree winter and summer, and that this is done entirely by the automatic action of the skin, it must arouse admiration for the orderliness of nature. In cold weather the capillaries of the skin contract, keeping the warm blood deep in the internal organs. In warm weather they expand, and besides, the sweat glands pour out perspiration, which dries, causing the skin to be cooled by evaporation. It is often said that the more a person sweats, the more healthy he is. There is no rule about this. Certainly a dry skin is unhealthy, but excessive perspiration probably means consumption of alcoholic beverages more often than anything else.

Its Total Weight

The total weight of the skin is about six pounds. If removed it would cover an area of about six feet. It is the largest organ in the body.

The use of face powder and other cosmetics has something to be said for it. They distinctly protect the skin against light and wind and are, in themselves, soothing. Massage of the face does nothing but clean the skin. It does not make the pores small, nor prevent wrinkles or color changes in the skin.

Inside was a regular sized hen egg, with a softer shell. When broken the space between the two egg walls contained the white and yellow found in normal eggs.

IN THE THEATERS

Irving Berlin

Composer Gets His Due In Movie, 'Alexander's Ragtime Band,' Now Showing At State Theater

"ALEXANDER'S Ragtime Band," which opened a week's engagement at the State theater Saturday can be listed as one of year's best, as any of the thousands who viewed the film over the holiday week-end will testify.

The picture tells of Irving Berlin's song-writing career which began in 1911 when he published his first composition "Alexander's Ragtime Band." For 27 years this song has remained in the front and today they are "swinging" it.

Since Berlin gave "Alexander's Ragtime Band" to the music world he has written many other songs, 28 of which are heard in this picture. The most catchy of these numbers include "When the Midnight Choo-Choo Leaves for Alabam," "The International Rag," "This Is The Life," "Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning," "All Alone," "Remember," "Blue Skies," "Easter Parade," "Cheek To Cheek" and many others.

The picture also includes his two latest song hits, "Now It Can Be Told" and "My Walking Stick," both of which promise to be as great successes as his other contributions.

Tyrone Power plays the part of a young violinist who deserts opera for the sake of organizing a small band which specializes in entertaining in saloons along the Barbary Coast. In the orchestra is Don Ameche, who is a composer and who also plays the piano, and Jack Healy, the drummer. Alice Faye, who earns a livlihood by singing in cheap restaurants, meets up with the band and sings "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

Needless to say Tyrone falls in love with Alice and so does Ameche. The band is such a hit that soon its services are in big demand at swanky night clubs. Alice gets an offer to join a show in New York and quits the band.

Comes the war and Tyrone and Healy join the army. They go overseas and when Power returns he finds Alice married to Ameche. He reorganizes his band and signs Ethel Merman as a singer. They go to France but the show is a "flop" and the band returns. From this point on the picture moves swiftly and musically to a happy ending.

Jean Hersholt and Helen Wesley are cast as a music teacher and Power's haughty aunt respectively. Paul Hurst is a standout as a friendly bartender and John Carradine is fine in his role of a taxi driver. Wally Vernon, Ruth Terry, Douglas Fowler and Eddie Collins also give fine portrayals. —H. J. K.

Bang Bang!

'Racket Busters' Based On Police Records And Action Of Thomas Dewey In Gang-Ridden New York

"RACKET BUSTERS," now playing at the Ceramic theater, is so much like any other gangster blood and thunder picture that it is hardly necessary for you to go out of your way to see it unless you like this sort of thing.

It has received a lot of notice because it is supposed to be about Thomas Dewey, the racket-smashing prosecutor of New York, and for this reason it is timely.

The story tells how the young prosecutor, played by Walter Abel, smashes the gangsters. Humphrey Bogart, who is trying to organize the truckers to control the produce market.

George Brent, the real hero, leads his truck driver pals, among them Allen Jenkins, in the fight and eventually, after the most unspeakable atrocities, the wicked mobsters are smashed, crushed and beaten.

Warner Brothers has made so many films of this type in recent years that it seems the producers have a set pattern in which they insert new characters every six months. The Dewey angle is swell publicity, but that is about all.

As one reviewer pointed out, this is too bad because the picture is supposed to be based on actual police records in New York, and this, surely, ought to be the best source material possible for a howling melodrama.

As it is, it achieves about as much drama and action as that wonderful documentary film, "The Birth of a Baby."—C.L.

Movie Contest

Local Theaters Pass Booklets On $250,000 Promotional Scheme For Entire Film Industry

Local theaters this week began passing out booklets on contest rules and questions on the motion picture industry's $250,000 prize contest in cooperation with one of the largest promotional schemes of an industry in years.

The contest, which is being sponsored by all major motion picture producers, consists of a series of questions on 94 pictures to be produced between now and Jan. 1, 1939.

Contestants will be required to answer only 30 questions and then to write a 50-word letter on the picture liked best during this season. All rules and the questions are printed in the booklet being passed out at all local theaters.

The first prize will be $50,000 in cash. Other prizes, 5,404 in all, range from $25,000 down to $10. All entries must be mailed in before Dec. 31 this year.

The industry is spending well over a million dollars to promote interest in motion pictures during the rest of the year. The contest is designed to augment and take the place of all other promotional schemes.

"Alexander's Ragtime Band" at the State theater, "Racket Busters" at the Ceramic and "Sing You Sinner" at the Columbia are contest pictures.

PRESIDENT SEES VITAL NEED FOR FREE PRESS

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—President Roosevelt sees a "vital need" for a free press "untrammeled by prejudice and unfettered by selfish bias, which will serve no cause but that of truth and which will recognize no master but justice."

Congratulating Frank D. Schroth, former Scranton, Pa., publisher, on his recent acquisition of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, the President wrote:

"These times, it seems to me, demand above all else truth in the news, for it is a corollary of our democracy that the public can be depended upon to assess problems and policies at their true value if facts are presented as facts, and opinion as opinion—each in its true light. We are governed by public opinion. We cannot lay too much stress on the importance of truth in the news."

"Once the public realizes that its newspaper serves no interest save that of truth," the President's letter continued, "it will give that paper an allegiance that neither depression nor ill-fortune nor any form of hard times can weaken."

GAVERS

The women of the Bethel Missionary society will hold a church fair Friday night in the Wayne township Grange hall. The young people's class will stage an entertainment and a cash prize will be given for the most exhibits.

The Characters

Hugo Stern, handsome author, living on the French Riviera.

Archie Lumsden, myself, his friend.

Rene Geiss, master mind behind a murder plot.

Ottilie Wills, American heiress.

Yesterday: Incensed at the attempt on my life, Venner summons Stahl. I eavesdrop.

CHAPTER 26

Determined Young Woman

"IT'S the principle of the thing," Venner was saying shirtly. "I did my part—I put up the original capital, and Geiss and the lot of you agreed that I wasn't to be troubled further. What do I care if a few foreigners die suddenly? I've never met them. I don't know them. But here, without consulting me, you arrange to murder a harmless lad under my very nose! It's a wonder to me it wasn't the death of me, and as it is I'm feeling very far from well—"

"For that I am so sorry!" said Stahl, the hint of a sneer in his voice. "But to call the young man harmless — no, that is stupidity. Why do you think he came here, to your hotel, if not to spy on you? No, no, Monsieur Venner, he is not harmless — no, that is stupidity. argument, you supplied our capital, it is true, but I think you have been well repaid. A hundred percent on the first outlay, and how much more since?"

"That's all right!" answered the old man testily. "I'm not complaining, but this lad's no spy. He's a nice lad, and I like him. His death isn't going to bring us in any profit, and I'm not standing for it. You hear what I say, Stahl, and you go back and tell the same thing to Geiss."

"And tell this to Monsieur Geiss, and that to Monsieur Geiss!" retorted the Baron, and this time the sneer in his voice was very marked. "And why, pray, can you not send for Monsieur Geiss himself to give him your orders? It is because you are afraid of him — because you do not care to face him. But now I will tell you something, Monsieur Martinez Venner. This is our last coup—we are all agreed on that—and nothing must stand in the way of its success, neither your bad heart nor your liking for this Englishman. I have warned you, and now I go."

"Go, and be damned to ye!" came the voice of Mr. Venner, and now it was trembling with passion. "But I tell you this—yes, and I would tell Geiss too if he were standing in front of me. I won't have it, and if you refuse to drop the thing, I'll take measures!

There was a sudden crash, as of a chair sharply overturned. It was obvious that the interview was breaking up, in more senses than one, and if I wanted to get clear away, I should have to shift rapidly. I clambered down from the table, made a hurried reconnaissance along the empty corridor, and sprinted down it to the safety of my own room, just as an opening door and the whir of the mounting lift told me that the Baron was taking his departure.

I watched him strut to his car, a fat, ludicrous, yellow balloon, and drive away; then slowly and thoughtfully I made my way out of the house and up the lane to where Hugo was waiting for me.

"My young friend," said he, when I had told my story, "we'll have no more of this. After lunch I'll drive you back to the hotel, you'll pack up your traps, pay your bill, and come home with me."

"You forget," I put in mildly, "that my host has definitely decided against having me killed off, and what more can a guest ask? Besides, in the last twelve hours I've learned the devil of a lot—where Venner hangs out, his relations with the rest of the gang—and who knows what another day will produce? I tell you what," I added magnanimously, "I'll sleep another night there and rejoin you tomorrow."

Feeling Of Revulsion

We drove on to the Carlton in a more peaceful frame of mind, but the sight that met our eyes as we strolled leisurely up the ramp, did nothing to add to our gaiety.

There was Ottilie Wills, slim, gay and graceful, sitting at a small corner table. And the man who sat opposite her, his expressionless, pebble-like eyes fixed intently on her face, was Rene Geiss himself.

I have never experienced a stronger feeling of revulsion than at the sight of these two together; but the effect on Hugo was even more remarkable. He swore aloud, while I saw the dusky color rising to his temples. Then, without a word, he began to push his way through the tables.

In two strides he was beside them. "Miss Wills," he said stiffly, "may I have a word with you—in private?"

She looked up quickly. "Why Mr. Stern!" said she. "Surely this is an early appearance? I thought famous authors never awoke till tea-time?"

"Hugo, my dear one," Geiss said, but his voice was less affectionate than his words, "I am always so glad to see you, but just now a little less glad than at other times. Miss Wills and I are having a small private business talk."

"Business?" Hugo caught him up sharply, but the girl broke in. "Why, yes!" she said, "Mr. Geiss has done me the honor to wish to make a sketch of me."

Hugo gripped the back of a chair, but before the explosion came, I spoke hastily.

"I think that's a top-hole notion," I said heartily. "But as a matter of fact, Miss Wills, Mr. Stern has an urgent message for you and I know Mr. Geiss will forgive us."

Ottilie Wills stood up, slowly and with a hint of uncertainty. "Is it as important as all that?"

I gripped her by the arm. "Woman," I whispered, "do you want to provoke a free fight in the most public place in Cannes?" and I led her firmly through the entrance to the bar.

She dropped into a chair and stared up coolly at the two of us. "Well," she demanded, ominously quiet, "and now may I hear your message and go back to my table?"

"That is not your table," said Hugo, still more quietly. "And this is my message. Mill Wills, you will not sit to Rene Geiss for your portrait — neither will you hold any more conversations with him in future."

"And why not?"

"Because," he retorted, "Rene Geiss, as you have already been told, is not safe or fit company for any girl, and Heaven knows we have enough to occupy our minds at the moment without trotting at the heels of rash and imprudent young women. Merciful heavens!" he added, in an uncontrollable burst of irritation. "How many times do you have to be told a thing before it enters your head? You were told that if you didn't keep out of this business, it might seriously endanger us all, and the first thing you do is to scrape acquaintance with your sister's murdered!"

She winced at that, and I saw the tears start to her eyes; but the voice in which she answered him was very far from tearful.

"You're sure you've quite finished?" she asked. "Because I'd certainly like to make a remark or two. You say I scraped acquaintance with Mr. Geiss. That's not true. Baron Stahl introduced us, not half an hour back, and it's not my fault if he wants to do a picture of me. You know very well I'm doing it for a purpose. You say that if I don't keep out of this business, it may seriously endanger you all—but it seems to me that if I don't take a hand, it's my uncle's life that will be seriously endangered. You say this must be found out and that discovered, but what have you actually accomplished? Nothing! You're as far as ever from knowing when, where, and how they'll try to kill my uncle, and every day, every minute brings the danger a little nearer. It's five little days till the 30th. After that it'll be to late—he'll be dead, like poor Melanie. I tell you, Mr. Hugo Stern, you may be a wonderful author, and your sister and your friends may think you're the brightest thing that ever happened, but your best isn't good enough for me!"

'No Quarrel Of Ours'

She broke off with an angry gasp that was almost a sob. Then suddenly she swung round on Hugo, black eyes blazing. "I know," she cried. "You're all set to tell me some more, and I'll take all you can give me—but first let me finish. You believe this man Geiss had my sister killed? You believe he's the head of the conspiracy to murder my uncle? Well, then, isn't he the one man who will surely know what plans have been made?"

Hugo had got a grip on himself by now, though a quiver of the nostril told of fury held in check.

"Miss Wills," he said, "I have always believed that no woman was capable of reasoned argument, and now I know it; but before we leave you, there are one or two observations that I should like to make. First, this is no quarrel of ours. The sudden death of an unknown American, as far as my friend and I are concerned, would certainly be no reason for us to endanger our own lives and liberty. Yet in spite of that we are doing what we can to help you protect your uncle. Only this morning a murderous attempt was made on my friend's life, while bathing. Only this morning, as I waited for him in the main road beside my car, Baron Stahl deliberately attempted to run me down."

"Hell!" I said, "you never told me that!" But before I could continue, the girl broke in.

"I'm so ashamed!" she said, very low. "I feel the lowest thing on earth, and yet—" She broke off suddenly. "Oh, there's Uncle!"

As I looked up, startled, I saw the tall, gray-clad figure of Virgoe Wills himself standing in the entrance to the bar.

"Ottilie!" he called, in a stentorian bellow, "Come out here this minute, I want you!"

"I'll have to go," she said. The next instant we were standing before the old man.

He was a fine-looking old fellow, still muscular, in spite of his age. His gnarled face was both wise and kindly, and his eyes, surveying us shrewdly through round-lensed spectacles, were the eyes of a man who knew the world.

He listened to his niece's introduction with a noncommittal air, but as he looked up and down, his expression softened.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I am glad to make your acquaintance. I wish that I could ask you to join me in a drink, but our luncheon awaits this way you would do me the honor tonight at six thirty?"

As Men See Us

GIVE ear, my daughter, and receive my counsel; for the pursuit of popularity leadeth over many hurdles, and the trail aboundeth in pitfalls.

Lo, the woods are full of men, but men are full of caution; in elusiveness, the fox is simple beside them.

I charge thee, seek not to be a monitor of modes and a glass of fashion; for a "knockout" giveth warning, and a human "shriek" affrighteth the game. Verily, simple tweeds and a becoming dirndl are more desired than an imported creation, which causeth thee to resemble a weird dream.

Costly thy smile as thy dentist shall make it; for a pearl in the mouth is worth two on the finger. And it is better to be dead than unkissable. But lips that are painted as with house paint are as a scarlet fever sign upon the door, more alarming than charming.

Simple thy costume and casual withal, but expensive thy perfume as thy purse will buy; for a man oft confuseth scent with sentiment and mistaketh an alluring fragrance for an alluring personality.

Few thy rings, but many thy bangles; for a musical jingle enchaneth the masculine ear, even as the tinkling of cymbals; or as a rattle delighteth a babe. And perfectly-groomed hands are more to be desired in a business office than knowledge of English composition.

Modest thy hats, yet chic withal and as colorful as thine heart may desire—but never freakish! For a woman's hat is the key-note to her type. And what damsel yearneth to be a comic strip or to set herself down as a hot sketch, that men's sleeves may be filled with laughter?

Glamorous thine hair, at any price; for an expensive coiffure is a woman's crown of glory. But be not tempted by false prophets to display thine ears! For the human ear may be useful, but it is not beautiful; nay, even as the frog and the giraffe, it is one of nature's little jokes!

Plain thy topcoat, but frilly thin evening frocks, and as flatly as a ballet dancer's. For a feminine rustle is as poetry to a man's ears, and many ruffles are as good as many curves.

Verily, a wise damsel dimmeth her headlights; but a foolish damsel painteth her finger tips as scarlet as sin and gildeth her hair with much gold. She goeth forth with banners flying and with sounding brass. And, at sight of her, men flee on wings of fear!

Go to, I say unto thee, waste not thy substance upon fads and novelty. For a man knoweth not last year's leftover from this years last-word. But he knoweth an eyeful when he seeth her!

A WEDDING TOOK PLACE SUNDAY AFTERNOON at 1:30 o'clock in the First Methodist Episcopal church when Miss Josephine Cartwright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Cartwright of 412 West Seventh st., became the bride of Dr. Philip W. Graff, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Graff of 915 Chestnut st. Rev. William Dwight Heaston performed the ring service and the bride was given in marriage by her father.

The church was decorated with palms and ferns and candles lighted the altar. Miss Bernadine Williamson, church organist, played the Bridal chorus from "Lohengrin."

Miss Vivian Livezey in dotted white moussaline de soi and wearing garden flowers in her hair, served as maid of honor; Mrs. Ralph G. Fugate wore orchid moussaline de soi with a garden flower coronet and served as matron of honor, and Mr. Fugate was Dr. Graff's best man. The bride's mother wore brown lace and Mrs. Graff wore midnight-blue crepe. Their corsages were of gardenias.

The bride was gowned in white lace and her shoulder-length veil was caught in place with gardenias. She wore her mother's gold locket and carried a colonial bouquet. Colonial bouquets were carried by the maid and matron of honor and each wore heirloom lockets. The bride graduated from East Liverpool High school with the class of 1930 and previous to her marriage was employed with the Ohio Power Co.

Dr. Graff is a graduate of the East Liverpool High school with the class of 1930 and Kirksville College of Osteopathy & Surgery. He was interne at the Cleveland Osteopathic hospital for a year and for the past year has been associated with Dr. I. N. Beall and Dr. Hazel Lyne in Zanesville.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where garden flowers were used in decorating. Luncheon was served 35 guests. Mr. and Mrs. Graff left immediately for an eastern tour and after Sept. 12 will reside in Zanesville. The bride wore a traveling costume of black trimmed with Persian lamb, with black and Parisanne accessories.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Smith and son, Edward, and Miss Mary Gorland of McKeesport, Pa.; Miss Hilda Weber, Mr. Harry Weber and daughter, Hazel, Steubenville, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fugate of Cincinnati.

Miss Betty France Beaumont, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Beaumont of Pughtown, became the bridge of Mr. Paul Edwin Davis, son of Mrs. Tillie Davis Hannum of 836 Laura ave., Friday, Sept. 2. The ceremony took place in the parsonage of the Cumberland, Md., Methodist Protestant church with Rev. Baughmann officiating.

Miss Doanne Herron and Mr. Orland Wallan of Chester were the attendants.

The bride was gowned in a navy blue ensemble and her corsage was of roses. She is a graduate of the New Cumberland High school with the class of 1935 and previous to her marriage was employed in Flood's restaurant in Chester.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the East Liverpool High school with the class of 1936 and is employed at the Cunningham & Murphy Service station. Mr. and Mrs. Davis are residing at 206 Louisiana ave., Chester.

MRS. SIDONIA HALL

Mrs. Sidonia Hall of 666 Lincoln ave., who owns and operates a restaurant at 631 St. Clair ave., has been in the restaurant business in East Liverpool for 16 years.

Born in Brussels, Belgium, 1904, she grew up there and became an expert silk worker. In 1921 she came to Hopewell, Va., in answer to a call from a silk mill there, and married Harry Hall. The following year, she and her husband moved to East Liverpool, and in 1931 Mrs. Hall established her restaurant in its present location.

Mrs. Hall has several hobbies, among them fine hard crochet work and knitting. She swims and hunts and likes to fish at Pine Lake.

The "restaurateuse" has established quite a reputation for her pies, notably huckleberry, and cream chicken.

Mrs. Hall plans a trip back to Belgium next fall to visit her family. She hasn't been back since 1928.

"It's good to see the home folks," she'll tell you, "but its wonderful to get back to America again."

LEADING STOCKS IN SLOW DECLINE

Traders Hesitant Following Recess Over Labor Day

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Buying forces were asleep at the switch in today's stock market and leading issues back-tracked fractions to more than a point.

The list flirted with mild recovery trends after an indefinite opening but, failing to attract any important following, soon began to give ground.

Tension over the European muddle semed to have lessened a bit as the Czech government made further concessions to the Sudeten Germans and Hitler, in his initial speech at the Nurnberg congress, withheld any comment on the Czechoslovak crisis.

Traders, generally, came back from their Labor day holiday none too positive regarding the next market move, and most shied away from extending commitments to any great extent despite continuance of bright business prospects.

Bonds were mixed and commodities pointed lower.

Demand for gold abroad continued heavy and the price of the yellow metal at London was given another hoist to a three-year peak after its sharp advance yesterday. Sterling also dipped to a new bottom since 1935 in terms of the dollar. Trans-Atlantic securities markets, though steadied.

U. S. Steel pushed up at the start, but fell away when Bethlehem and Chrysler exhibited weakness.

Lacking rising vigor were General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, Boeing, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Du Pont, Loew's Paramount, General Electric and Pennsylvania.

Farm implements were confronted with additional estimates placing agricultural income this year at more than $1,000,000,000 under that for 1937.

A grain of comfort was derived from an upward revision in utility construction estimates. Earlier this year it was believed the volume here would approximate only $300,000,000 for 1938 compared with $455,000,000 in 1937. The latest guesses were for an aggregate of about $425,000,000.

Not overlooked was the summary of the Standard Statistics Co., putting industrial production for the first six months 30 percent below the comparative period last year, with chances thought good for the year-to-year decline to be cut to 15 percent in the final half.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Responsive to pronounced downturns of Liverpool quotations, the Chicago wheat market underwent material setbacks early today. Liverpool price tumbles were construed here as indicating the European political situation was less serious than had been expected.

Opening ½-¾ cents off, Chicago wheat futures afterward dropped further. Corn started ½-⅝ down, Sept. 50-50¼, Dec. 48-48¼.

with "the menace seen in today's armament races and aspiration of some powers."

He said the world doesn't climb by explosive advances but by slowly evolving ideals.

"Things unworthy carry their own penalty," he warned "We were fighting the bloodthirsty war lords then but today we have another menace.

"When this turmoil subsides the God-fearing nations and the honest men will be found surviving," he concluded. He brought the greetings of the city and Mayor Lee Copenhaver.

The veterans sang tunes of the World war days before the 24-act vaudeville show was staged with Harry C. Shreck of Pittsburgh as master of ceremonies.

Sunday morning the veterans got down to the business of the election, held after the memorial program.

One of the peace-time duties of the 332nd regiment, distinguished for its loyalty and bravery, is preservation of world peace, Mr. Vodrey said in his address in the memorial service in the Elks temple.

Dr. Montecci Speaks

Mr. Vodrey was followed by Dr. Montecci, who brought greetings from Premier Benito Mussolini, King Victor Emmanuel and the Italian ambassador, praised the regiment for its wartime record, pointed to the esteem in which it is held in Italy and urged a rapproachment of Italy and the United States, "in the common cause of peace."

"One of your duties is to insist that there shall be no more war," Mr. Vodrey told members of the regiment.

He said that if one nation starts a war, all others might become active aggressors against that nation, as one method of guaranteeing peace.

"Loyalty to your country must have been uppermost in your minds as you left East Liverpool, but the spirit of adventure must have been there too," Mr. Vodrey said. "It was that same spirit that brought Columbus to America, that brought settlers to the Atlantic seaboard and spread civilization through the northwest territory and to the west coast."

Mr. Vodrey said the fact that the regiment was the only American unit to aid the "hard-pressed but hard-fighting" Italian army was a recognition of merit and ability, and that the record of the unit has not ceased in peace time. He said that the city was honored by the coming of the regiment.

Dr. Montecci, a captain in the war, concluded his address with "You may sincerely rely on me for promoting better understanding friendship between our two countries. Thus we will do something worthwhile for humanity and fulfill our duty to our dead."

The consul said Italians have a strong feeling of friendship for Americans and always will remember the "beauty of victory" which the American regiment helped achieve. He was pleased, he said, to find that members of the unit remembered so much of the Italian people, Italian villages and life in Italy.

"The officials of my nation are anxious to welcome you in 1942 to the world fair in Italy and desirous of renewing old acquaintanceships," he said, issuing an invitation to the regiment to make the trip as guests of the Italian government.

He said he brought greetings from Mussolini, Fulvio Suvich, Italian ambassador to America, and Asimeri di Bernezzo, first adjutant general, for His Majesty Victor Emmanuel, King of Italy and Emperor of Ethiopia.

Deemer Introduces Speakers

Mr. Deemer, introduced the speakers. S. W. Crawford pronounced the invocation, and "taps" was sounded in memory of members of the regiment who have died during the past year.

A musical program was arranged by Miss Lysbeth A. Hamill, organist and choir director of St. Aloysius church, who sang and lead a sextet.

Saturday afternoon wives of the veterans were entertained at the Mary Patterson memorial by wives of the local officers. Conventions in the past have been held in Akron, Cleveland, Youngstown, Cincinnati and other cities larger than East Liverpool.

Veteran from farthest away was Earl Clawson of Miami, Fla., An Aspinwall veteran attended in a wheel chair, other veterans made his trip possible.

Other retiring officers of the association are Ernest A. Purton, treasurer; Robert Guyton, general chairman, and Walter Schneider, secretary, of East Liverpool.

Elwyn Shenkel, Patrick Powell, Thomas Brozka, Colin Morton, John Ludwig, Charles Kapp, Ray Bloor and Ross Fox were others who assisted in the convention.

findings turned over to the attorney general's office.

The auditor also is holding up from the current legislature's mileage fees $1,890 for the house for the two weeks ended July 8, and $252 for the senate's last week. While not included in Harbage's original suit, these amounts were similarly for skeleton sessions, and Harbage contended the same ruling was applicable against them.

'Mass Purge' Of Coyotes

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—A "mass purge" of coyotes started last November in Los Angeles county has resulted in the death of 650.

The coyotes were branded as pests because of their depredations on poultry, livestock and wildlife and the county board of supervisors offered a bounty of $1 a head. School boys, ranchers and sportsmen, as well as professional trappers, participated in the county-wide program.

MEET 'MISS BROOKLYN'

Will this young lady be "Miss America of 1938"? At least the beauty contest judges in Brooklyn thought so because they picked charming Barbara Beach as their representative at the national pageant in Atlantic City.

THOUSANDS GO BACK AS SCHOOLS CONVENE

Adjacent Communities Open Classes For Fall

School for children in Wellsville, Chester, Newell and in the St. Aloysius parochial school of East Liverpool began today. Pupils in the East Liverpool public schools will return Wednesday.

In Wellsville the enrollment is expected to reach the 1,700-mark while in Chester more than 1,000 were expected to report. In Newell schools about 625 were expected, while in St. Aloysius approximately 300 were to enter.

The enrollment in the East Liverpool district schools today was estimated by H. G. Means, superintendent of schools at 5,600, with more than 1,700 in the high school and 3,900 in the elementary schools.

A general teachers' meeting was held in the high school auditorium this afternoon when instructions were given. There will be a full day of classes Wednesday when books will be distributed and lessons assigned for Thursday.

New Cumberland schools reported 469 pupils enrolled on today. There were 191 in the high school and 278 in the elementary school as classes began.

A. L. Rabenstein, county superintendent who was making a check on the county enrollment, estimated the total enrollment between 6,300 and 6,500.

Hancock county schools were dismissed at noon. Regular classes will begin Wednesday morning.

TURNER

complished the feat.

As an overtone of the squabble among eight entries for $45,000 worth of prize money, Turner and Earl Ortman of San Diego fought a private duel for the lead almost the entire distance. Ortman had outflown Turner at Oakland only last May.

Ortman, too, bettered Detroyat's pace by five miles an hour.

With three laps to go, he hung doggedly to Turner's heels. He flashed over the line in second place, wheeled about, cut his ignition switch and shot in blindly, guided entirely by radioed instructions, since his windshield was covered with oil.

Ortman drifted in over a canvas fence at the south end of the airport with only feet to spare and landed his fleet racer with his motor frozen and his propeller idle.

Third place went to Steve Wittman, Oshkosh, Wis.; fourth to Leigh Wade of New York and Buenos Aires; fifth to Joseph Mackey, Findlay, O.; and sixth to Joe Jacobson, Kansas City. The other two entrants, Harry Crosby and Arthur C. Chester, both of Los Angeles, dropped out.

COUNCIL STUDIES NEW STREET WORK TONIGHT

Council is expected to add new streets to the blanket WPA street project in consideration of necessity resolutions in the meeting tonight.

A contract ordinance for leasing the International Pulpstone quarry in the West End for obtaining curbstones for the project may be ready and a proposal to license house-to-house photographers may be included in council business.

The city expects to award contracts today or tomorrow for material for the street repair project, set up for $414,058. Work for approximately 170 will be resumed Wednesday.

Blue And White Grid Outfit Starts Forward Pass Tactics

East Liverpool High school's Blue and White grid candidates took to the air lanes today in a strenuous two-and-a-half hour practice session, their last morning workout of the pre-season grind.

On Wednesday, the opening day of classes, Coach Joe Morbito will inaugurate the late afternoon sessions, in which a maximum of work still will be required because of the comparatively few days which remain before the initial battle of the campaign, slated Sept. 16, with Lisbon's eleven forming the opposition.

Despite the more specialized work on the aerial game which took place today, pads and headgears were very much in evidence as the coach devoted a goodly portion of the session to work on the apparatus, continuing to barrel his charges through toughening and conditioning drills.

Pleased With Scrimmage

Morbito appeared well pleased with Saturday's opening scrimmage workout as well as another he handed the boys on Monday, which was Labor day to them in fact as well as name.

By now most of the aspirants are in good physical condition, having shaken off the aching muscles, sore feet and nauseating effects of the stiff early drills. Up to today there had been no casualties, which fact has somewhat lightened the burden of the coaching staff.

No varsity squad has as yet been forthcoming, even in the coach's mind, but he has had a chance to look everybody over, and while he has shied away from drawing any conclusions as to the relative abilities of the candidates he has been making plenty of mental notes on the condition and their adaptability toward work, which factors will play an important part in the formation of the team, at least for the first several weeks of the season.

Each day a few more plays will be handed out, to go with the fundamental offensive tactics with which the gridders worked last week.

On Wednesday, another scrimmage session probably will be the principal item of business. The coach's program calls for some sort of contact work every day now until time to taper off for the Lisbon encounter.

'Real Scrimmage' Friday

The Wednesday scrimmage probably will be the toughest and most extended thus far, a sort of build-up for the first "regulation scrimmage" of the training grind, which is due about Friday.

From now on Patterson stadium will be closed, as has been the custom during the last two years. It is pointed out, however, that this will not prevent any fan or loyal Potter supporter from viewing the practice proceedings if he is so interested. To gain admission to the sessions, he need only apply to some member of the coaching staff for a pass.

The gesture should not be interpreted as a move to keep out anyone with a genuine interest in the team or its members, but as a means toward maintaining order so that the immense amount of work lined up may be accomplished.

EAST PALESTINE TAKES LEAD OVER FOE IN COUNTY TITLE TILT

Walker's Two Timely Blows Defeat Lisbon

Triumph For Flynn's Team Today Will Take Flag

Special To The Review.

EAST PALESTINE, Sept. 6.—The trusty bat of First Baseman Walker in Sunday's encounter was responsible for the advantage enjoyed by Mickey Flynn's East Palestine Eagles as they squared off today against Lisbon in the fifth game of the county league's post-season championship series.

Walker, with a homer and a single, drove in both of Palestine's markers as it downed the county seat firm, 2-1, to chalk up its second triumph of the series. Lisbon holds one victory, while the other clash ended in a deadlock.

A triumph for East Palestine, in the battle which starts at 5 p. m. this afternoon, will give Flynn's nine the title. If the game goes the other way, however, a fifth and deciding game will be necessitated.

Sunday's engagement proved to be another red-hot pitchers' battle between Jim Brown and Don Mackall, drafted by Lisbon from the East Liverpool Eagles, and was decided in Frank Merriwell fashion in the last of the ninth inning.

Lisbon took the lead by tallying its lone run in the first frame. Walker stepped up and poled out his circuit smash in the fifth to deadlock the count and the two teams then battled tooth-and-nail for four innings until Walker sent Morris home from second with the game-winning bingle.

Boren was the more niggardly with the hits, allowing the Lisbon nine but three, two of which were collected by Nick Muntean. Mackall only allowed six, three of which were by Walker, the hero of the day.

Boren fanned 11 Lisbon batters while Mackall struck out five of the Palestine. Both pitchers issued four bases on balls.

PIRATES' LEAD CUT TWO FULL GAMES AS RESULT OF HOLIDAY BATTLES

By BILL BONI
Associated Press Sports Writer

THE Pittsburgh Pirates, who stumbled around for weeks without suffering any damage beyond that to their self-esteem, today awoke to the fact that the law of averages, as well as the Reds and Cubs, are catching up with them.

Emerging from yesterday's holiday festivities on the short end of two games with Chicago, the battered Buccaneers also discovered that their National league lead had been cut by two full games. For while the Cubs were whipping them, 3-0, and 4-3, the Reds were taking a 4-3 and 4-2 decision from the Cardinals—a combination of circumstances which left Cincinnati only four games off the pace in second place and Chicago five games away in third.

It is a situation which threatens to become even more unpleasant for Pie Traynor's pennant-aspiring crew. For one thing the Reds, getting their second wind coming down the home stretch, have won eight of their last nine, while the Pirates have taken only one out of five.

For another, the Pirates still have those nine games to play with Cincinnati, two of them this week. For a third, the Reds' pitching staff should be strengthened any day now (perhaps today) by the return of Johnny Vander Meer, and for a fourth, if a fourth is needed, that same staff is getting along right nicely without No-Hit John.

Yesterday, for instance, Bill McKechnie called on two of his question marks, and the question marks promptly turned into exclamation points. It's true that Bill had to hustle in Paul Derringer from the bull pen to pull Jim Weaver out of a hole and the opener of the fire. But Big Jim had allowed only four hits up to that point and, as added relief to the often-harassed McKechnie, Rookie Red Barrett won his second start in as many attempts in the nightcap, in which he held the Cards to seven hits.

Even the breaks went against the Pirates, except at the box office. An overflow crowd of 42,545, largest of the day's total big-league attendance of 179,560, at Forbes field saw the Cubs score three unearned runs to take the first game despite Ed Brandt's five-hit pitching job. They then won the second on a ninth-inning ground rule double by Carl Reynolds and Hank O'Dea's single.

Four of the other bargain bills also resulted in clean sweeps. In the National league, Tot Pressnell was charged with both defeats as the Boston Bees turned back the Brooklyn Dodgers, 5-4 and 5-3.

In the American league the Yankees beat the Athletics, 5-2 and 6-3; the Red Sox walloped the Senators, 14-4 and 8-6, and the Indians won their sixth and seventh straight, over the White Sox, by scores of 6-4 and 4-2. The Yankee victories were the 14th of the year for Spud Chandler and Monte Pearson, while Lou Gehrig broke his own major league record and tied Babe Ruth's lifetime mark by topping 100 runs driven in for the 13th straight year.

The Giants, after Cliff Melton had pitched a three-hit, 7-0 shutout in the opener, got no better than an even break with the Phils, who took the nightcap, 4-3, as Al Hollingsworth struck out seven. The Tigers and Browns also split, St. Louis winning the first, 3-2, on Southpaw Howard Mills' four-hit pitching and Detroit the six-inning nightcap, 9-3, in which Eldon Auker got credit for the victory before a line drive by Beau Bell knocked him down. The submarine baller had to be carried from the field.

Alabama's Rosy Gridiron Prospects Bring Smiles To 'Tide' Supporters

By The Associated Press.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Sept. 6.—Blessed with great material and a winning tradition, Alabama's 1938 football prospects are so rosy many of the team's supporters are pinching themselves to see if it's true what they say about the Crimson Tide.

Where the 1937 outfit was one of the lightest in recent Tide history, the 1938 eleven will have an eye-filling line and a swift backfield.

Veterans are back in numbers, but prime attention is centered on a trio of newcomers. Fred Davis, a 225-pound tackle from Kentucky and Ed Hickerson, 210-pound guard from California, are sophomores who look like the answer to any coach's prayer.

Charley Boswell, junior from Birmingham, out with injuries last year, is slated to step into Joe Kilgrow's post at left halfback. The 175-pound Boswell is faster than Joe, and can pass, punt and block.

Returning veterans will fill most of the other posts.

Hayward Sanford, whose last minute field goals beat Tulane and Vanderbilt last year and brought a Rose Bowl invitation, returns for substitute end duty, but good ends are so numerous here he may not see much action.

"We should be as good as last year," Coach Frank Thomas says, "but they'll all be gunning for us, and we have to get ready for Southern California Sept. 24."

If Alabama has a weakness, it isn't apparent to the naked eye. The toughest southern foes, on pre-season dope lists, are Tennessee, Tulane and Vanderbilt. Louisiana State and Auburn, ranked just behind the Tidesmen by southeastern coaches, are not on the Alabama schedule.

The Crimsons lost their last game to a southern opponent when Vandervilt shellacked them on Thanksgiving day, 1935. If they lose one this year, a lot of folks will be surprised.

LOOK OUT, BUCS!

GEORGE HALL TAKES MIDLAND NET CROWN

Special To The Review.

MIDLAND, Sept. 6.—George Hall reigned as champion of the Midland Tennis club today by virtue of a five-set triumph over Robert Needs in the finals of the club tournament.

Needs won the first two sets, 6-2, 6-4, but Hall rallied to take the next three, 6-2, 6-0, 6-1.

In the semi-final Needs defeated David Reynolds and Hall downed Charles Bream.

F. F. DEBOLT SCORES VICTORY ON FAIRWAY

F. F. DeBolt emerged victorious in one of the feature events of the holiday golf program at the East Liverpool Country club, scoring a two up triumph in Monday morning's match play under a full handicap.

Sam Caplan and Don Smith tied for second honors in this event with two down.

Joe Wells Sr. and Jack Davies took the afternoon's best ball match play against a full handicap.

William Wells, with a 69 and playing from scratch, took Saturday's medal play against a seven-eighths handicap. Ev Hall was second with a 71-1—70.

In the kickers' handicap Sunday J. E. Hedenquist, A. A. Wells, Reid Calcott, Maurice Fredland and Francis Cloran finished in that order.

In the club championship tournament Ev Hall defeated J. Donald Thompson three and two for the right to meet William Wells in the finals. Randall Greene gained the final round of the second division, defeating Nate Allen four and three. He will meet the winner of the Jack Davies-Francis Cloran match for the second division title.

TWO NETTERS REACH Y-MEET THIRD ROUND

Robert Baxter and Jack Taylor were the first of the Y. M. C. A. Open Tennis championship participants to move into the third round, winning their second round encounters over the week-end, which also saw the completion of the remaining two first round matches.

Baxter upset Bill Ogilvie, 6-2, 6-2, while Taylor finished strong to take the measure of Porter Raridan. After losing the first set to Raridan by a 2-6 score, Taylor rallied to win the extended second set, 8-6, and then copped the final set and match 6-4.

Rigby Mast disposed of Kenneth McCaughtry with a score of 6-3, 6-3, and Dewitt Irwin Jr. downed Bob Earl by an identical count in the closing first round matches.

Second round matches which must be completed this week pit Richard Crable against Fred Pollock, Clair Nichols against Paul Orin, Byron Skinner against Irwin, Art Thomas against Donald Miles, Mast against O. W. Ferguson and William Buckley against Paul Hutchman.

SALEM NETTERS TAKE COUNTY MEET TITLES

SALEM, Sept. 6.—Don Hamill won the singles title and Willard Albertsen and Loren Early retained the doubles crown in the Columbiana county tennis tournament sponsored by the Salem Country club, completed on the club courts Monday.

Hamill defeated Walter Deming, 7-5, 6-3, 6-3, and Albertsen and Early downed Dr. Richard Harwood and Deming, 7-5, 6-3, 6-2. The final round in both divisions was an all Salem affair.

Budge Victory Retains Davis Cup For U. S.

Foot Faults Hamper Quist At Crest Of His Game

BY GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—The glittering Davis cup, symbolic of world team tennis supremacy, remains in these United States for another year, and the maligned foot fault has reared its ugly head again.

When Donald Budge had finished polishing off Adrian Quest of Australia by scores of 8-6, 6-1, 6-2, in the match that settled the challenge round out at the Germantown Cricket club yesterday, Frank Hunter, an old American internationalist, said "Gee, it made me feel like I was in Paris again."

Hunter had reference to the fact that after the French had won the big trophy from America 11 years ago they were very stubborn about turning it loose again. Visiting American teams complained that French line judges were extremely valuable in the French cup defense.

What happened yesterday was that an American line judge, one Harold La Blair of New York, called a series of disconcerting foot faults against Quist at the exact point in the opening set when the little Australian was blazing hot and threatening to give the world's top amateur a trimming.

Whether Quist in any circumstances could have licked Budge and carried the challenge round to the final match between Bobby Riggs and Jack Bromwich is subject to serious doubt, but the decisions cost the invader whatever chance he had and made the crowd of over 9,000 fighting mad.

The referee had to calm them down twice.

Harry Hopman, captain of the Australians didn't complain. He said he thought Quist was foot faulting. What the crowd and several prominent American tennis officials complained about was the way La Blair waited until the most crucial points of the all-important first set. It broke Quist's confidence so completely that he proceeded to lose his service eight straight times, possibly a record for big-time tennis.

As things turned out, Budge's victory was the vital one, because Bromwich beat the tar out of Riggs in the concluding singles match, 6-4, 4-6, 6-0, 6-2, giving America a final winning margin of only 3-2 over the scrapping Aussies.

Riverview Meets Beaver Nine In Diamond Tourney Friday

Guy Digman's Riverview Florists gained a forfeit triumph in the Beaver-Ohio Valley Baseball tournament which opened at Beaver on Labor day and will meet the Beaver Grays Friday at 5 p. m.

The Florists' opponent, the Aliquippa C.I.O. team dropped out of the tournament late Sunday night, too late to permit officials to find a team to take its place.

Beaver won its opening round game, rallying in the eighth inning to upset the Shelby Tubes of Ellwood City, 8-5. Todd, on the mound for the Beaver nine, limited the foe to six hits but three of those blows were homers and he and his team trailed until the eighth when they pounded Komara from the mound and scored five runs. Beatrice finished the game for Ellwood City. The two relinquished 10 hits between them.

Midland will meet New Galilee, first half champs in the Beaver county Inter-City league, today and the Aliquippa Reds will face East Rochester on Wednesday. The two winners will meet Thursday. An old timers battle is slated for Saturday with the tournament finale next Monday.

The Beaver nine, which won the Youngstown District Semi-Pro Congress, was defeated twice by the Florists on July 4.

Digman's nine dropped an 8-7 decision at Stratton Sunday.

FALSE RIFLE SCORES RESULT IN PENALTIES

By The Associated Press.

CAMP PERRY, O., Sept. 6.—Three U. S. army privates started serving terms of one month at hard labor today while a civilian marksman was under suspension from the National Rifle association and Camp Perry until Aug. 15, 1939, following investigation of "inaccuracies" in scoring at the national rifle matches.

The privates also were fined a portion of their pay.

Maj. Gen. Milton A. Rekord, executive vice president of the National Rifle association, said the civilian penalized was Eugene Zimmer of Newburg, N. D., whom the general said was charged with "collusion in the inaccuracies," which occurred several days ago.

Two scorers, charged with falsification of scores on the firing line, were Privates Riley S. Shirley and Charles C. Lockett, both stationed at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indianapolis, Ind. Private William H. Devis of Fort Sam Houston, Tex., a competitor in the match in which scoring inaccuracies were charged, was sentenced originally to six months at hard labor and forfeiture of $14 a month pay, but following Zimmer's suspension the sentence was cut to one month by Col. F. C. Endicott, executive officer of the post, who said the service man's punishment should be more in keeping with that of the civilian.

National Rifle association officials said cases of marksmen attempting to boost their scores through chicanery were few.

PORTSMOUTH TAKES MID-ATLANTIC LEAD

By The Associated Press.

PORTSMOUTH, O., Sept. 6.—Portsmouth's Red Birds swooped into a half-game lead today as the Mid-Atlantic league entered its final day of scheduled play.

For the first time since June 3 Canton was not perched on the peak. The Terriers dropped a doubleheader, 8 to 0 and 9 to 6, to the upsurging Charleston Senators yesterday while the redhot Birds whipped Akron twice, 8 to 6 and 13 to 3. Each had one game left to play today.

League President Elmer Daily ruled in Pittsburgh late yesterday against the Red Birds in their protest of four Canton victories over Portsmouth. Sam Politano, general manager of the Birds, charged that Canton Manager Pat Patterson directed the team from the bench after declaring himself suspended.

While the Birds were winning and the Terriers losing, Springfield slapped Johnstown definitely into the cellar with a double sweep, 10 to 4 and 4 to 1. Erie, who headed Johnstown but a half game, managed to split with Dayton, the Ducks taking the first 1 to 0 and the Sailors the second 5 to 0.

Sport Chatter

By The Associated Press.

Down at Duke they're harping about the inexperience of Wallace Wade's 1939 Blue Devils and that means all hands had better look out . . . Terry's plans for a 1939 shakeup have the Giants scared stiff . . . Up in the Canadian-American league they only yawn when you say something about no-hit games . . . They've had four of 'em this season (and the Gloversville, N. Y., club figured in all four) . . . Every time he is slated to pitch, Lefty Gomez takes a little Chinese boy to the Yankee stadium . . . And did you see those pictures of Lefty decorating his wife, June O'Dea the former musical comedy eyeful, right on the kisser in a night club? . . . Looks like a reconciliation . . . Best front office job honors in the majors this year go to Larry MacPhail.

See where they've posted the Eddie Phillips-Jack Doyle match in London . . . It's just as well—the longer the better—Derl said he hurt a rib in training . . . One of his sparring partners must have hit him.

Look out for that Columbia football team this fall and that goes for the Yales, too . . . When Monte Pearson lost that game the other day he had won 13 games including 10 straight; he had pitched 13 complete games and Hank Green, the 13th batter, opened the winning inning with a double . . . No wonder ball players are superstitious.

If you take the word of Potsy Clark, coach of the Brooklyn football Dodgers, the best football talent grows out where the grass is highest . . . The way Hank Greenberg is pounding out doubles and triples these days shows he isn't aiming for the fence every time he goes up there . . . By the way, the betting locally is that Hank (who now has 46) will not bust Babe Ruth's homer record of 60 this year . . . Indignant Pitt fans are wiring in to say that Goldberg is in swell shape and will do as much ball-toting as ever this fall . . . . well, mebbe.

It is now pretty well established around the Yankee stadium that Tommy Henrich will be Lou Gehrig's successor when the Iron Horse decides to step down . . . Howard Brickey, sports editor of the Wichita Falls (Tex.) Times calls Oscar Vitt's Indians the "Vanishing Americans" . . . Lee Gamble of the Reds has a new baseball superstition — he refuses to change his sox (or his socks, either, if he can help it) while in a hitting streak.

Joe Cronin gave his wife the robin's egg blue sedan he won for being named on the cereal firm's all-star team . . . Somebody's doing one good job of press-agenting for the Cleveland Rams of the National football league. Looks like we'll see plenty when the Messrs. Baugh and Cecil Isbell former Purdue ace hook up in the National football league this fall.

About one-third of the time consumed in household duties is devoted to the preparation of meals.

TWO TIE FOR HONORS IN HIGHLAND TOURNEY

Joe Greenwood and Ray Deyarmon deadlocked for top honors in the blind bogey tournament, feature event of the holiday program at Highland View Country club Labor day.

The fight for second honors was even more heated with six fairway artists finishing in a tie. They are Martin Sheerer, Francis O'Donnell, Harry Oyster, Earl Ewing, Dr. H. E. Matthew and Sam Broadbent.

Ralph Kapp, Bill Wright and Bill Kress tied for third place.

Freddie Hopper, Highland View pro, said that the number of players on the course over the week-end topped all marks for the year. Between 150 and 200 golfers toured the course.

Bill Bossen and Francis O'Donnell tied for medal score honors with 84's. The latter, former Highland pro, is visiting from Columbus.

The club's round robin tournament is expected to be completed this week, Hopper said today.

GOOD GRIEF, MAC- I FORGOT ALL ABOUT YOU BEING IN THE BASEMENT
HEY! HOW AM I GOING TO GET MY PLANE OFF THE ROOF OF THAT BUILDING?
RIGHT NOW YOU CAN TAKE YOUR HAND OFF TILLIE'S SHOULDER
AND AS FOR YOUR PLANE— I GOT IT OFF THAT MOUNTAIN, DIDN'T I?
DON'T WORRY, DICK— MAC WILL FIGURE OUT SOME WAY TO GET IT OFF
I BROUGHT HIS CAR DOWN- NOW HE SHOULD GET MY PLANE DOWN

TOOTS AND CASPER By Jimmy Murphy

CASPER, IT COST ME $20.00 TO ENTER "SCRAMMY" IN THURSDAY'S RACE AND I'VE GOTTA PAY "TINY" $5.00 TO BE MY JOCKEY!
I ONLY HAD $35.00 TO START WITH, SO THAT ONLY LEAVES ME $10.00 TO DO MY BETTING!
COULDN'T YOU RIDE THE HORSE, YOURSELF, COLONEL HOOFER, AND SAVE THE JOCKEY FEE?
ARE YOU GOING TO BET ON SCRAMMY?
NOT A CENT— THE ONLY WAY TO BE MONEY AHEAD IN THE RACES IS NOT TO PLAY 'EM, TOOTS!
IF SCRAMMY LOSES... WHAT WILL SOPHIE SAY WHEN A VAN BACKS UP HERE TO TAKE OUR FURNITURE... AND THEY YANK HER RING OFFA HER FINGER? OH-H.
JIMMY MURPHY 9-6

LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY By Darrell McClure

BLESS YOU, KIND-HEARTED CHILD— YOU NEVER FORGET TO BRING ME SOME FRESH SPRING WATER
OH, THAT'S NOTHING— ME AN' ZERO LIKE TO WALK OVER THIS WAY EVERY MORNIN'
9-6
NO, CHILD— YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE SMART TO READ THE FUTURE FOR SOME PEOPLE— THEY'RE LIKE A LOT OF BIRDS— THE OWL IS THE FORTUNE-TELLER— WHEN A SILLY GOOSE GOES TO HIM TO HAVE HER FORTUNE TOLD— THE OWL PREDICTS SHE WILL SOON MEET A HANDSOME GANDER AND HAVE A LARGE FAMILY
WHEN A STUPID YOUNG TURKEY COMES STRUTTING IN— THE OWL PREDICTS THE TURKEY WILL HAVE A HAPPY LIFE UNTIL NOVEMBER— BUT BEWARE OF TROUBLE THAT WILL COME AROUND THANKS-GIVING DAY— SO YOU SEE, FORTUNE-TELLERS CAN PREDICT THE FUTURE FOR SILLY GEESE AND STUPID TURKEYS—
BUT, MY DEAR— DON'T YOU EVER WORRY YOUR LITTLE HEAD ABOUT FORTUNE-TELLERS— YOU ARE A KIND, HONEST, UNSELFISH LITTLE CREATURE— AND YOU MAY BE SURE THE FUTURE WILL BRING YOU MORE SUNSHINE AND SMILES THAN TEARS
